ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I express my sincere gratitude to my guide, DR. P. MUTHUSWAMY, Director, Bharathiar School of Management and Entrepreneur Development, Bharathiar University, Coimbatore, for his unfailing interest and inspiring guidance in the conduct of the research reported here. Inspite of his extremely busy schedule he always had time to spare for this study. His scholarly eminence and thoroughness in going through this thesis and valuable comments greatly helped me in improving its presentation.

I heartily thank Mr. ASHOK SHRIVASTAVA, Assistant Director, Indian Council of Social Science Research, New Delhi, for graciously permitting me to carry out the research for the Ph.D., degree under the open doctoral fellowship of ICSSR at Coimbatore.

My sincere thanks are due to Mr. K. V. LAKSHMANAN, Secretary & Correspondent of Erode Arts College, Erode and its Principal, Prof. R. V. RAMAKRISHNAN for providing all the facilities required for the execution of this work. I am thankful to the Government of Tamil Nadu for having granted me the deputation for doing research leading to Ph.D.
My heartfelt thanks are due to Mr. K.P. KUMAR, Reader BSMED, DR. KULKARNI, Professor and Head of Population studies, and DR. B. MUNIYANDI, Reader, Dept. of Economics, Bharathiar University for their valuable help in processing the data related to this research work.

My profound thanks are due to Mr. M. SELVARAJ, Administrative Officer, The New India Assurance, Erode for his active assistance in the construction of research questionnaire and schedules used in this research work.

I am grateful to several officials of the General insurance companies for having helped me to obtain the needed data. They include, General Manager, General Insurance Corporation of India, Bombay; Mr. MUTHULINGAM, Senior Divisional Manager, United India Insurance Company, Erode Mr. M. RAVEENDRAN Administrative Officer, New India Assurance; Mr. A. RAMADAS, and Mr. G. THIAGARAJAN Assistant Divisional Managers, Oriental insurance company, Erode.

My heartfelt thanks are due to Prof. SUMANT, Dept. of English, Erode Arts College, and Mr. S.R. VENKATA RAMA KRISHNAN, Administrative officer of National insurance company to having thoroughly gone through the draft and offered useful suggestions in its presentation.
I owe a special debt of gratitude to all the respondents in Periyar district for their co-operation for the collection of the primary data required for the present study.

I am much grateful to DR. M. ANNADURAI, Librarian, Erode Arts College, Erode for his great help and continuous encouragement all throughout.

A host of my friends, Co-researchers and my Grandmother, brothers, sisters, brother-in-laws and all family members, were immensely helpful to me in various ways throughout the course of my research work. I express my thanks to all of them.

Finally, but most importantly, my heartfelt thanks are due to Uncle Mr. P. VENKATESAN, Aunt Mrs. ELIZABETH, and Miss. VINUTHA, whose encouragement and support were vital for the completion of the present research report. Their involvement and dedication are highly appreciated.

(L. MANIVANNAN)