ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is with most profound feelings of respect and reverence, I record my sincere gratitude to my research supervisor Prof. R.C. Hanumanthu for giving me an interesting problem “Geological, Petrological and Geochemical characteristics of mafic dyke swarms from Tirupati cluster in the vicinity of the southern part of cuddapah basin, India: Implications for proterozoic crustal evolution” for my doctoral dissertation. His constant encouragement and positive evaluation of my ideas have immensely helped in addressing the problems presented in the thesis. His contribution is enormous for the successful completion of this doctoral dissertation for which I shall remain forever indebted to him.

I would like to express my sincere thanks to Prof. Y. Venkatarami Reddy, Head, Department of Geology & former Registrar of our University and Prof. A. Nagaraju, Chairman, Board of Studies of our department for their kind co-operation and constant encouragement at various stages.

My grateful thanks are due to Prof. K. Kesavaraju, Prof. T.V. Krishna Reddy, Prof. N. Subba Reddy, former Heads, Department of Geology, Prof. N. Balayerikala Reddy, Prof. A.S. Sudheer, Prof. T.
