Acknowledgements

Writing this thesis would have been impossible without the support of a number of people.

I owe a warm debt of gratitude to my supervisor, Dr. S. Nageswara Rao, Department of Training & Development, EFL University, for his scholastic guidance and inspiration towards the completion of this dissertation. He created a space for me to learn from my own mistakes and showed immense compassion whenever I needed it most. Without him, this thesis would have never been possible. "Thank you Sir", for being so patient and letting me do the work at my own pace.

My untold note of thanks to Prof. Julusen who actually taught me the basics of the research by being my guide and for patiently listening to my queries and inquiries during my MPhil days. Thank you dear madam beyond words for your love and affection.

My mentors- Dr.Jacob Tharu, Dr. Rajagopal, Dr. Amaliraj, Dr. Shrutsircar, Dr. S.Upendran, Dr. Amritvalli, Dr. Geetha Durairajan, Dr. Prahlad, Dr. Anand Mahanand, & Sujatha Mukiri....Thank you all for introducing me to the world of ELT and inspiring me to produce this thesis.

Dr. Susie Tharu, Dr. Madhav Prasad, and Dr. K. Satyanarayana, for all those cultural studies insights you have provided me through the discussions and seminars. They have been the sources of strength and helped me to shape my identity and develop critical thinking. I am grateful to you people.
I have no words to describe Dr. Boddu Venkat Rao (Venkat Anna) for what he is for me.........to simply put it, he is just the man behind me who encouraged, motivated, to perform the feat of thesis from the day one to till date. He is the immediate one to whom I look up to and forward to seek anything. Thanks for the pleasure.

My special thanks to brother Ravindranath Sanam, for the time he had for me and the patience to discuss with me every point in detail that has taken shape in this thesis.

My heartfelt gratitude for the elderly people who have always been source of inspiration and standing by me through the trials and tribulations of my campus life, Dr. Thirupathi Rao sir, Muralidhar Thadi sir, Suresh Kumar sir and Baleswar Rao sir.

I thank the dearest buddies Ravi, Zeenath, Susheel, Suneel, Suresh, Bhaskar, Prakash, Amith, Nilesh, Madhuri, Ramu (Didi), Balaraj, Uday, Raju and Paul for everything what they have been for me...they need no words to explain.

My special thanks to the Principal, staff, and students (my subjects) of Jawahar Navodaya Vidyalya, Peddapuram, East Godavari dist. for their whole hearted cooperation which made my study.
Thanks to the library staff and Dean’s office staff of EFLU for their cooperation and support.

Last but not least, the dearest students of Libya of my yester years were actually the ones underwent all my experiments happily and contributed lot of insights which helped me to frame the hypothesis for my thesis.

The acknowledgement cannot be complete without the mention of my dearest family.

_Nanna, Amma, Laxmi (wife), my brothers who have always make me feel proud Phani, Dr.Madhu and thoughtful sister Dr.Deepika_, thanks for your unconditional love and support which sustained my ambition and kept me doing.

My other friends, family members and relatives for the good wishes and blessings.
