ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would like to thank Allah Almighty for making my dream come true and for the blessings throughout all the stages of my life. Second, this thesis also will not come in this picture without the help of many people, to whom I would like to express my deepest and sincere gratitude.

First and foremost, I would like to express my deepest gratitude towards my supervisor Prof. P. Madhavan, for patiently and wisely guiding me through the stages of writing this thesis: starting from the stage of writing my coursework requirement papers, until the stage of writing the final draft of this thesis. I also thank him for his endless efforts, patience, and support and for being co-operative, helpful and kind all the time. He taught me how to depend on myself without putting much pressure on me, which made me enjoy writing each chapter. I have to admit that without the help of Prof. P. Madhavan, my work would never have come in this neat form.

I also would like to express my heartfelt gratitude to Prof. K. A. Jayaseelan for his valuable comments and precious discussions, for reading and commenting on early drafts of some of my chapters and his constant guidance over the years. My intellectual debt to Prof. Jayaseelan is huge. I was fortunate to be a student in his class where I have learnt a lot about syntax. His suggestions have always helped me in shaping my work.
I would like to thank all the teachers in the Linguistics Department, those who taught me the first letters in linguistics: Prof. Hemalatha Nagarajan, Prof. R. Amritavalli, Dr. Anuradha Sudershan, Prof. K.G. Vijayakrishnan, Prof. Prabhakar Babu, Dr. Hari Prasad and Dr. Dominique Savio. It is worth mentioning that their academic knowledge and encouragement made me fall in love with linguistics.

I would like to thank Dr. Hany Babu for teaching me semantics and being always available to answer my naïve semantics questions. I thank him more for being a good friend rather than a teacher.

Special thanks to LISSIM 6 faculty members for the valuable discussion. First, I thank Dr. Ayesha Kidwai and Dr. Tanmoy Bhattacharya for the inspiration and Prof. Jonathan Bobaljik for the encouragement. I also would like to thank Prof. David Pesetsky for spending some of his valuable time trying to help me work out some of the problems of Chapter 5 and for his valuable suggestions. Huge piece of gratitude goes to Prof. Utpal Lahiri for all the discussion, suggestions and references that he provided. I thank him for being co-operative and patient; and for his enthusiasm to help me since he visited EFLU in 2011.

I would like to thank Shehla Khan for proofreading an early draft of my thesis. I also would like to thank Dr. Rahul Balusu for reading the pre-final draft of my thesis and for his suggestions.

I owe much to those who helped me during the data collection for my research in schools, colleges and neighborhood. Special thanks to Nagat Aklan for helping me find speakers of different ages from Taiz province and Dr. Jamal
Mohammed Ahmed for his constant help and suggestions during the data collection process.

I would like to thank the staff of EFLU library for their immense help and co-operation.

I cannot forget the pleasant time I spent in Hyderabad with my friends and their spiritual support that made my stay in India lovely and interesting. I thank Najwa Mohammed for her true friendship, consistent love and care; Aisha Saleh, Awatif Saleh and Wadhah Al-Mahwary for being like my family, Fatimah Al-Enbary for the spiritual talks and advice, Huda Saif for the fun. I also thank Mirfat Al-Ameesi, Sahar Alshargabi, Nagat Aklan, Sharooq Lateef, Sumathi Chellappa, Soumya Paloor, Enshirah Moghny, Afrah Moghny and Naseem Moghny for everything.

Last but not the least, I would like to thank my family for their endless support, love and prayers. To my mother, words are not sufficient to express my feelings; I thank you for all the sacrifices you gave in your life in order to make me the person I am now. Loads of gratitude also goes to my brother Ahmed, who gave me company in Hyderabad for four years, for his love, help and for being such a good brother all the time. I also thank my beloved siblings, Angela, Saleh and Khadra for their prayers, faith and spiritual support.
