ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The thesis in hand titled - "A STUDY OF TEACHER'S PROFESSIONAL VALUES FAMILY RELATIONSHIP AND ANXIETY IN RELATION TO ORGANIZATIONAL CLIMATE" completed and being submitted by the investigator is an outcome of the efforts, cooperation, goodwill and encouragement of several persons operating in different capacities at different stages of the work, this becomes the duty of the investigator to acknowledge their contributions and pay due tributes to them.

The topic was registered for the degree of Ph.D. in Education under the supervision and guidance of Dr. R.L. Vishwakarma, Reader in Education, D.V.P.G. College, Orai. The investigator will ever remain grateful to him for his untiring efforts in pulling her up to the desired level of research competencies. He helped the investigator in preparing the synopsis and showing the directions of work into which she had to move at different stages. He read the manuscript, checked the analysis, corrected mistakes and gave valuable suggestions from time to time apart from encouraging and keeping the morale of the investigator up. This is something which the investigator will never forget in her life's time.

To begin with the investigator would like to express her sense of gratitude towards Dr. Y.K. Gupta, Reader in Education, Hindu College, Moradabad it was he who motivated to work for this degree and also helped in identifying the present problem without their inspirations and assistance this study could have not been finished.

The researcher wishes to acknowledge her appreciations to all the colleges in the department of education who evinced keen interest in her study and enlightened her on many points through their discussions. In particular, she wishes to thank Dr. (Mrs.) Nita Gupta, Reader in Economics, Hindu College, Moradabad, Dr. (Mrs.) Shailza Gupta, Department of Education, D.V. College, Orai, Dr. Jai Pal Singh 'Vyast', Department of Education, Hindu College, Moradabad, who have kindly gone through the calculations and checked them.

Any piece of research work does not represent the accomplishment of the worker alone. One has to draw heavily on the work done by the various thinkers, authors and research workers in the field. The researcher would achieve a feeling of satisfaction by acknowledging her debt to the authors of various books and reference books consulted by her.

Though not possible to mention here individual names this investigator can not forget to say that she is extremely grateful to a number of principals and teachers of colleges of Bundelkhand University, who participated in this research and helped in the collection of data, the absence of which this work would have never been completed. Their cooperation was the foundation stone on which depended the completion of this research.

The investigator wishes to express her sense of indebtedness her husband Shri S.R. Day and family members & son Subhasheesh, (iii)

Devasheesh, daughter Shmita for their cooperation, sympathy and good wishes manifest in various ways all through the period of this work. Last but not least, the investigator wishes to express for sense of gratitude towards all her friends who were in any way, associated with this humble work of research.
