ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

There have been innumerable instances where one person constantly took upon herself to encourage and cajole me in giving my dissertation the utmost focus, lifting my spirits and being a passive observer at times of my determined efforts towards completion. That person was my mother who I dedicate my dissertation to and the deepest regret I have, is of not being able to complete my doctoral in her lifetime. My father and mother always cherished a desire of me achieving the highest qualification and I owe my complete life learnings & knowledge acquisition capabilities to their vision and in giving a wonderful childhood full of abundance in every way.

My guide Dr Neelam Lal, whose vast knowledge in the field of Human Resources and her mastery in guiding doctoral students was awe inspiring. I am indeed fortunate to have found a true Guru, who very subtly kept raising the bar and gave me immense courage to delve deeper in the subject, and master it completely. Notwithstanding her own commitments, she has often given my dissertation top priority and was always available to share a thought and clarify innumerable queries.

For providing abundance challenge and never letting the focus on timely submissions be diffused, my heartfelt gratitude to Dr. R. K. Srivastava.

Were it not for Stephen Haines, CEO & Founder Haines Centre for Strategic Management, USA, I would have perhaps never realized and appreciated the immense depth of Systems Thinking & Strategy. His sincere dedication and commitment to Systems Thinking, seriously impacted my choice of research. I can never thank him enough for the same and for his unconditional sharing of his knowledge, books and tips on sourcing material.

It was just one mail request to Alan Bandt, Founder & CEO Bandt Gatter & Associates, Australia, to share with me the questionnaire and he was most helpful and willing, encouraged me wholeheartedly and shared case studies of his clients in implementing Strategic Human Resource Management.

My sister Dr. Sujaya Banerjee gave her unstinted support through these years, both emotionally and professionally. My aunts Kiran and Asha, my sister Sanjana, Meeta, nieces Ayesha and Priyanka, nephew Aryaman, who have waited patiently and at times restlessly to see me complete my doctorate, which propelled me to move faster on my research!
My friend Janki and her book store Twist n Tales, have relentlessly worked towards ensuring that every book relevant to my thesis was procured and delivered. Nimisha, whose unstinted support was a boon, given the many tasks I had to juggle.

The support in the office from Akshada and Colin was phenomenal and their patience in dealing with various upheavals deserves special acknowledgement.

Writing a thesis inevitably demands constant reinforcement and people around you who believe in your capabilities, I must thank in particular, Dr. Srinivasan, Sumanta Rudra, Romancee, Meera, Sunita and Jaydeep; it is indeed a gift of life to receive encouragement in abundance.
