Preface

M.N. Roy was a great political thinker. He wrote extensively throughout his life. However, he was not a consistent thinker. He changed his position from a Nationalist to a Marxist and then finally to a Radical Humanist. The purpose of this study is to highlight the development of the political ideas of M.N. Roy. An attempt has been made to examine Roy’s views during these different phases and to explore why he changed his views from time to time.

I am greatly indebted to my supervisor, Dr. Suneera Kapoor, Reader, Department of Political Science, under whose scholarly guidance and supervision I undertook and completed this work. It is primarily due to her sustained encouragement, keen interest, valuable suggestions and patient guidance that I have been able to accomplish this research work.
