ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It is a pleasant task to express my sincere thanks to all those who have directly or indirectly contributed to complete this Ph.D thesis in various capacities. First of all, I would like to express my heartfelt thanks and gratitude to my supervising teacher Dr. A.K. Ramakrishnan, currently working as Professor, School of International Studies, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi who always provided support to develop a clear perspective on democratizing development and governance at the local level and graciously tolerated my failures to complete the study in time due to my administrative and academic responsibilities in various institutions. I am grateful to him for the facilitative support and guidance extended to me to go through different stages of this study, in spite of his busy schedule of academic work. I also wish to acknowledge my sincere thanks to Dr. K.M. Seethi, Director, School of International Relations and Politics, Mahatma Gandhi University for providing all support in completing this study.

I have received support and assistance from several persons in carrying out this research work on assessing the democratic performance of local governments in Kerala during the last two decades of decentralization. There are so many functionaries of local governments including, presidents, standing committee chairpersons, members, secretaries, officials, community level leaders and resource persons, who have provided support to give primary level information and participated to fill the questionnaire as part of this study and I acknowledge each and every one of them. There are large number of policy support team members who have associated with decentralization in several capacities as ministers, secretary of the LSGD, members of the State Planning Board, members of the Committee on Decentralization of Powers, academics, social activists, DPC chairperson, leaders of Local Government Association etc.
I am extremely indebted to Dr. Thomas Isaac, Former Finance Minister and Member of the State Planning Board, Dr.P.K.Michael Tharakan, Parayil Valliara, Kakkathuruthu, Eramallor, Alleppey and Sri S.M.Vijayanand, I.A.S., Secretary, MoPR, Government of India who have immensely helped to develop my theoretical understanding on democratic decentralization and local governance and to develop a democratization measurement framework and research questions discussed in this research work. Nevertheless, it will be wrong on my part not to mention the names of Dr. Martin Patrick, Director, Rural Academy for Management Studies, Dr. Jos Chathukkulam, Director, Centre for Rural Management (CRM) Kottayam and Sri. T.Gangadharan, President, All India People’s Science Network, who have gone through the draft text and give their feedbacks and suggestions for refinement and improvement.

I wish to acknowledge my sincere thanks to Dr. Angel Mathew, Associate Professor of Statistics, Maharaja’s College, Ernakulam for analyzing the primary level data and Sri. K.R. Shaji, Taluk Statistical Officer (Rtd.), Kalavampara, Mannom, North Paravur for preparing the tables used in this study. I also wish to thank my colleagues and friends in the Maharaja’s College, Ernakulam for their support and inspiration. Thanks are also due to Sri. M.G Sasidharan, Associate Professor (Rtd.) of English, S.N.M. College, Malliankara, North Paravur for the correction of my mistakes in English while drafting the report of this study. I would also like to acknowledge the support of Sri. Midhun Madanan and Sri. M.K.Deverajan for doing the data entry work and preparation of the raw data in the format of a master table.

The completion of this research work would not have been possible without the support of Ms. Mini.D, my life partner, whose continuous encouragement brought invaluable energy to complete this academic responsibility. My earlier association with the People’s Planning Campaign,
CapDecK and Kerala Institute of Local Administration(KILA) significantly contributed in developing my vision and understanding on participatory development and local governance. I am indebted to all my colleagues and friends in these organizations for their valuable support.

While acknowledging the contributions and support of the aforementioned, I would like to point out that I am exclusively responsible for my limitations and faults in this PhD thesis.
