Chapter 1: INTRODUCTION

1.1) Preamble to the topic

Management:-

Management in business and association is a specialty of planning the work and endeavours of individuals for using so as to achieve the objectives and goals the accessible assets viably and productively. Administration incorporates the arranging, sorting out, staffing and driving or coordinating and controlling an association and its exercises to fulfil the objective.

Definitions:

The views about the management are as under:

- Management is characterized as the association and coordination of the exercises of a venture as per certain approaches and in accomplishment of clearly characterized destinations.
- As an order, management contains the interlocking elements of detailing corporate arrangement and sorting out, arranging, controlling, and guiding the resources of an enterprise to accomplish the objectives according to its policy.

Importance of management:

- Managers assume a vital part and impact everyone in modern organisations at every phase. The business division administrators need to keep up a business power to advertise their products. A skilled and profitable workforce is given to the associations by the faculty administrators. The creation chiefs investigate the operations of assembling for the procedure of delivering the fundamental needs of life i.e. garments, the nourishment we eat, the cars we drive etc.
- There would be no conspicuous change in the current society without the direction of the administrators towards their associations. The understood administration creator Peter Drucker highlighted this moment saying that Effective Management is likely the primary asset of developed nations and the most required asset of developing ones.
- In short, one can say that whether developing or the developed societies need good managers in a immense lot.
Principles of Management:

A principle alludes to an elemental truth. It builds up circumstances and end results relationship under given circumstance between two or more variables. They serve as a manual for thought and activities. Consequently, management standards are the announcements of essential truth taking into account rationale which gives rules to administrative choice making and activities. These standards are determined: -

a. On the premise of perception and examination i.e. viable experience of directors.

b. By directing test examines.

There are 14 Principles of Management described by Henri Fayol.

1. Division of work
2. Party of influential power and Responsibility
3. Principle of one leader or boss
4. Coherence of Direction
5. Equity
6. Discipline
7. Order
8. Initiative
9. Fair compensation
10. Stability of Tenure
11. Scalar chain
12. Sub-Ordination of Individual Interest to General Interest
13. Espirit De' Corps (can be accomplished through solidarity of order)

Role of management:

- Essentially, the part of managers is to direct the associations toward objective achievement. All associations exist for specific purposes or objectives and chiefs are in charge of joining and utilizing authoritative assets to guarantee that their associations accomplish their reason
- The Management’s role is to guide an organization towards its purposes or goals by assigning activities for the organization members to perform.

- On the off chance that Management guarantees that every one of the exercises are planned successfully, the generation of every individual worker will add to the achievement of the authoritative objectives.

- Management endeavours to energize singular action that will prompt coming to objectives of the organization and to hinder singular movement that will obstruct the achievement of the association destination

- There is no thought more imperative than dealing with the satisfaction of the hierarchical objectives and destinations. The importance of the Management is given by its objectives and destination

Role of management in religious organisations:

Religious exercises for the most part need some foundation to be directed. Consequently, there for the most part exist religion-supporting associations, which are some type of association that oversee.

Management, Spirituality, and Religion (MSR) Interest Group of the Academy of Management (AOM) concentrates on interdisciplinary hypothetical and connected examination and teaching method identified with the significance and relationship of most profound sense of being and religion in administration and authoritative life.

Types of organisational structures:

Organizations are a variation of bunched substances.

Organizational structure permits the communicated designation of obligations for diverse functions and procedures to distinctive elements, for example, the branch, office, workgroup and person.

Organisational structures are categorised as:
1. Line organisational structure
2. Staff /Functional authority organisational structure.
3. Committee organisational structure
4. Divisional organisational structure
5. Project organisational structure

Human Resource Management:

The capacity in associations intended to augment worker execution in administration of their boss' key objectives is known as Human resource management (HRM or essentially HR). HR is fundamentally worried with how individuals are overseen inside of associations, concentrating on strategies and frameworks. HR divisions and units in associations are regularly in charge of various exercises, including worker enlistment, preparing and advancement, execution evaluation, and remunerating (e.g., overseeing pay and advantage frameworks).

Leadership-A theoretical approach

Leaders are individuals who look to impact the activities, convictions and the feelings of others.

This is an intricate procedure: powerful administration requires the qualities and abilities of the leader to join with individuals and their needs and in addition the needs of the authority circumstance.
This intricacy is reflected in the advancement of the theory of leadership in the course of recent years. Early administration speculations concentrated on the qualities and conduct of successful leaders.

The theory of leadership advanced with prominent comprehension of the:

• Needs and desires of individuals at work;

• Impact of diverse leadership styles on supporters and how the states of mind, conduct and fitness of the followers effect the leaders; and the

• Effectiveness of diverse leadership styles in distinctive circumstances.

Later the theories initiative speculations perceive the needs of the employees of today. The leaders of today need to comprehend the expanded desires of their kin to be counselled and included in making the decisions, and to have the self-rule to accomplish goals in the way they comprehend to be most effective.

The principle ways to deal with the theories of leadership are:

The Qualities or Traits approach: They are pioneers by birth, not made. Administration comprises of certain acquired identity characteristics or qualities.

The Functional or Group approach: This approach says that administration can be learned and created. It concentrates on the accountabilities, obligations and elements of the pioneer and the way of the followers. It looks at how the pioneer's conduct influences and is influenced by the gathering of adherents.

• Likert, Blake and Mouton and Blake and McCanse thought about behavioral styles crosswise over two measurements: sympathy toward generation (identifies with McGregor Theory X) and sympathy toward individuals (identifies with McGregor Theory Y)

Styles of leadership:
It spotlights on the initiative styles of leadership and how they affect those being driven. The reason is that subordinates will probably work viably for chiefs who receive a sure style of initiative than others:

In spite of the fact that dialog is a standout amongst the most essential devices for being a leader, authority needs to show itself with activities and results. Nothing is accomplished just by talking. Consequently, initiative ought to dependably be shown through a pioneer's characterizing qualities. A leader ought to be visionary, dependable, submitted, objective, and proactive.

- A visionary is somebody who looks for and gets the data he needs from specialists and from everyone around him. He considers both the current and the past circumstances (and their results) to decide. When he has made one, he can get individuals included in his "central goal," building up short-term, medium-term and long haul objectives, and additionally a project deciding how to accomplish those objectives.

Somebody with no vision confronting an issue will be restricted to what he knows, and trusts he knows everything to know. He looks however does not listen and does not propose options on the grounds that he supposes he is the proprietor of the outright truth, because of this nothing can turn out badly. His reasoning is only in view of his own projections and activities, taking a gander at the current circumstance (disregarding what brought on that circumstance) and, in this way, being not able unmistakably foresee what is going to happen.

- A reliable leader is somebody whose behavior is weighted on what he considers, needs, says and does. He trusts in moral values and develops his self-regard and the self-regard of everyone around him, regarding their great confidence.

Despite what might be expected, somebody who is not reliable for the most part questions himself and people around him (is unstable about himself and other people) and exploits their great confidence. He is likewise conflicting and for the most part shrouds his aims (and some of his activities) in light of the fact that they conflict with what was already masterminded.
• A submitted pioneer is somebody who is completely committed to the administration of the associations he has a place with, devoting his time, consideration, exertion, and assets to finish his obligations and accomplish the basic objectives. He imparts his undertakings, destinations, and objectives (and also the best approach to arrive), being steady with his choices and what he swears.

An egotistical individual offers need to his own advantage without including everyone around him, overlooking his individual obligations and the obligations he has to the general population working with him.

• A target leader is somebody who looks for data about actualities and judges strictly when gathering and dissecting all the important data. He canalizes his feelings to his targets and acts as indicated by the amount and the nature of both his qualities and his shortcomings.

Somebody who is Subjective does not dissect every one of the truths, constructing his choices with respect to gossipy tidbits and suppositions.

• A proactive pioneer utilizes his opportunity to look for circumstances and to foresee what is going to happen, get ready for every conceivable circumstance and mishaps. Along these lines he can control the occasions. He is somebody who is continually advancing (professionally) but then he can simply discover the time (individual time) to do every one of the things he appreciates.

Somebody who is Reactive, utilizes his opportunity to tackle the issues (he was not ready to anticipate them, in this manner he was not prepared for them), and is controlled by occasions. He is somebody who is constantly late with his work and, on account of that, he doesn't encounter proficient advancement.

There are basically three sorts of initiative or "administration styles", those are Authoritarian, Liberal and Democratic:

Authoritarian:

A tyrant style of leader sets mandates and the best approach to achieve the objectives without the investment of the gathering. He is likewise the person who doles out the work to every person and chooses the constitution of every group. He has a basically mandate stance, giving particular directions and letting no space for individual imagination by his subordinates. Fundamentally, a tyrant administration is just centred on the current workload.

Liberal:

A liberal type of leader is somebody who doesn't force rules. The subordinates have all out freedom to settle on choices and add to their tasks without counseling the pioneer. The gathering dependably chooses who does what and with whom.

Democratic:

This type of leadership helps and invigorates the level headed discussion between all components of the gathering. In this sort of administration, the gathering chooses the best approach to achieve the objectives and the division of the assignments. In any case, there is a slight strength in the leader’s voice. The gathering generally approaches the pioneer for specialized bolster, he proposes a few choices, and the gathering picks which one to take.

It is additionally vital to push that there are no immaculate styles; that is, no pioneer has one and only administration style. What more often than not happens is that the leaders have more qualities of a decided style and, consequently, the greater part of his activities is reliable with that specific style. The style of leadership has to be decided at time as per a particular undertaking, circumstance, or group he needs to work with.

Fundamentally, the authority style a pioneer expects in the circumstances he is confronted with is frequently becomes his trademark.

Qur’an
As per Islamic conviction, Allah revealed the Holy Qur'an to the prophet Mohammed through the Angel Jibraeel at forty years of his age after he turned into the Nabi (Prophet). As indicated by the Islamic teachings, the Qur'an is one of a few perfectly uncovered sacred writings, including the Books uncovered to Moses (The heavenly book Tauraat) and to Jesus (The blessed book Bible). Mohammed Rasulullah (S.A.W) is held in the best regard as a standout amongst the most respected and critical of all prophets. Qur'an has made due in its unique structure without the smallest modification since the season of its disclosure.

The Qur'an talks in capable, moving dialect about the truth and qualities of Allah, the profound world, Allah's reasons with humankind, man's relationship and obligation to Him, the happening to the Day of Judgment, and the life in the future. It additionally contains rules for living which Muslims consider to be tying, stories of prior prophets and their groups, and imperative bits of knowledge and understandings concerning the significance of presence and human life. In its unique Arabic, with its sincere, moving tone, the Qur'an talks specifically to the heart, offering teachings which one instinctually gets a handle on as genuine. It additionally talks significantly to the brain, admonishing people to contemplate and ponder Allah's creation as confirmation of His presence, force and value.

Since the Arabic content of the Qur'an is viewed as the immediate discourse of Allah, the Qur'an can't be truly "deciphered" into whatever other dialect. Then again, its rough significance can be given, and the Qur'an has most likely been rendered into each composed dialect on the globe. In light of the significance of the Qur'an in the lives of Muslims, Muslims overall take in Arabic from an early age and utilize it in their supplications to God day by day. Up right up 'til the present time, endless Muslims in different parts of the Muslim world have conferred the whole Qur'an to memory; even the least difficult villager is prone to know various sections which he utilizes as a part of supplicating. Other than this a percentage of the general population concentrate on the memorisation of the entire Qur'an.

Calling the Quran astounding is not something done just by Muslims, who have a thankfulness for the book and who are satisfied with it; it has been named astonishing by non-Muslims also. Truth be told, even individuals who loathe Islam all that much have still called it astonishing. One thing which astounds non-Muslims who are analyzing the book nearly is that the Qur'an does not appear to them to be what they anticipated. Likewise Quran has been interpreted into each significant dialect.

Keeping in mind the end goal to pick up a legitimate comprehension of numerous verses in the Holy Quran, it is imperative to comprehend and know the notable connection of the disclosures. Such a variety of disclosures in the Holy Quran came down to give direction to Prophet Muhammad and the kindred Muslims taking into account what they were standing up to around then.

Quran- A guide to mankind:

There are diverse wonderful books that were uncovered to distinctive Prophets to manage the humanity. Among all these radiant books, Al Quran has an one of a kind position in light of the fact that it is a book implied for all classes till the day of Judgement to come by conviction. After this no book is to be uncovered and it is the last expression of Allah. Al Quran is a finished aide of life in each part of Human movement. This book is the one which contains hypotheses (theories) as well as it brings a man into practice and activity by contemplating the puzzles of universe. For each Muslim recitation is one section yet it is a book to be comprehended and the guidelines be executed in one's life.

The learning bestowed through Al Quran is one of enlightens which is constantly successful and productive. There is profound intelligence in its words, the profundity of which can't be comprehended by common man; yet it is an expressway which will lead one to the right destination. There are progressive thoughts contained in the Quran directing man to take off high from the obscurity of corruption to the peak of brilliance.

Al Quran is a book of wonder which is a gift for the savvy and learned, it is a wellspring of light which enlightens the individuals who are in profound haziness. The information granted to Al Quran protects a man from sins and terrible deeds and inspires him. It gives best data about the historical backdrop of humankind and it is the best code of law for justice and equity.

The Muslim ummah consent to the way that however Al Quran is finished in itself, yet to take care of the day by day issues that emerge, appropriate elucidation is imperative. Mohammed Rasulullah (S.A.W) deciphered them in those days as indicated by the needs that emerged. The Sharia'h and the legitimate ideas of Islam are through the translation of Al Quran. Allah had instructed Rasulullah (S.A.W) to make the Law of Islam and this learning was granted to his through 'Wahye'.

Al Quran is a book which rouses the whole Muslim group. Through it any Muslim can advance in his profound life as well as materialistically as well.

For Muslims, the Qur'an is the everlasting and unquestionable expression of God. The most seasoned and most sacrosanct content of Islam, it is the foundation of each devotee's confidence and ethical quality. In any case, the Qur'an is likewise a natural book, and its history is personally joined with the life and history of a natural group.

Al Quran and its role in Muslim’s life:

In other religions, spiritual life and the secular parts of life may be different but in Islamic religion, there is hardly any distinction between the two. Islam is a religion of submission to the path of Allah and therefore majority of Muslims closely adhere to the teachings of Al Quran and the Prophet, Mohammed Rasulullah for leading their daily lives. No Muslim can deny the importance of Quran in his life. He cannot lead his life without the role of Al Quran in his life.

Quran reading and Quran learning guides the Muslims to live in peace, respect each other and follow the righteous path. For every Muslim, the importance of Quran cannot be denied. Teachings of Quran guide the Muslims that how to pray and please ALLAH. Islam is based on certain rules and laws and Quran learning can only demonstrate these laws to the Muslims. Quran and Islam are essential for each other. None of the Muslims can lead his life without the Holy book. As stated by ALLAH “We have revealed to you the book which clarifies every matter.”

Being a Muslim, Quran reading and Quran learning is his foremost duty. The teachings of Quran do let them know the way of living adapted by the Prophet and His companions. The teachings of Quran allow Muslims to understand the goal of their life. For Muslims, the Holy Quran is the book of advice and wisdom. They should perform Quran reading regularly and keep the guidelines in their heart. The guidance should be taken for improving their lives so that they can be called true Muslims.

The knowledge that is contained within Quran cannot be found in any other book. For any kind of spiritual ailments, Quran is the only cure. According to Imam Ali bin Abu Talib, “You should also know that no one will need anything after the Quran and no one will be sufficient without the Quran.” It is a fact that a person cannot be said completely guided if he has not followed the teachings of Quran. A Muslim who truly reads, understands and follows the sayings of Quran is complete in every aspect of life.

From this celestially uncovered source, the Book of God, Muslims determine the motivation and catalyst for their lives. Sections from the Qur'an are presented amid each of the five every day Namaz to Allah which cognizant Muslims observe and at different times too. It is Muslims' book of direction, containing the Message sent to them by Allah Himself through His honourable prophet, Muhammad, accepted to be the absolute best of humankind, as a light enlightening their way through this world. It is minimal marvel, then, that the Qur'an shapes the premise of much improving craftsmanship all through the Muslim world, for Muslims think of it as an honour and gift to have its consecrated verses decorating their homes.

The Dawoodi Bohra Spiritual leaders with the same, as their main objective to empower people with knowledge of teachings of Qur’an and the guidance that came through the prophet Mohammed had developed system in each era. In the former era of the 52nd Spiritual leader, Dr. Syedna Mohammed Burhanuddin (RA), through the voice of his successor, Dr. Syedna Mufaddal Saifuddin had inspired many people in his community to do the memorisation of the whole Qur’an and had a vision that in every house of Dawoodi Bohra there should be at least one Hafiz(one who memorizes the whole Qur’an) and for the same purpose he had developed an education system to learn to read and understand Qur’an and also to memorize Qur’an in a period of time. This system is progressively working under the leadership of the 53rd Dai, Dr. Syedna Mufaddal Saifuddin.

Dawoodi Bohra Sect:

Dawoodi Bohra sect, is a sub-sect of Shia Muslims who follow the religion of Islam. The Dawoodi Bohras have their origin from the country of Yemen, where it evolved from the Fatimid Caliphate and where they were persecuted due to their differences from mainstream Sunni Muslims and Zaidi Shia Muslims Around 1530 CE, the Dawat was relocated to India. The word Bohra itself comes from the Gujarati word vehru ("trade") in reference to their traditional profession,[1] while the term Dawoodi refers to the support for Dawood Bin Qutubshah in the 1592 leadership dispute which divided the Tayyebi sect, creating the Dawoodi Bohras.

The spiritual leadership of the Dawoodi Bohra group is called Dai-al-Mutlaq, which serves as the delegate of the Imam. The part of Da'i was made by Queen Arwa bint Ahmed (otherwise called Al-Hurra Al-Malika) of Yemen. It was at first made as a subordinate part to bolster different parts in that capacity Hujja, Du'at and Dai Balagh. When the 21st Imam, Al-Tayyeb, went into seclusion, according to rules of Imam's orders, Queen named Syedna Zoeb bin Moosa as the first Dai-al-Mutlaq giving him the unrestricted authority and auto control the entire D'awa

Being Shi’I Muslims, the Dawoodi Bohras believe that they follow a chain of Imaams who are the descendants of the Prophet Mohammed by way of his son-in-law Ali and daughter Fatema. It is their belief that Ali (A.S) was declared as his successor in a place which was a small valley, called Gadeer which became famous after this auspicious moment. This was the moment when Mohammed Rasoolullah (S.A.W) was returning after performing his first and final Haj in the year 632 CE. The Dawoodi Bohras, like all the Shi’i believe Ali(A.S) as the rightful Wasi/Imaam/Caliph to Mohammed, the prophet. Hasan ibn Ali became the first Ismaili Imaam after Ali(A.S). Hasan transferred his succession to Hussain who was martyred in the battle of Karbala with his 72 family members and companions.

Shi’i Dissonance and the Fatemi Dynasty

The first five Ismaili Imaams from Hasan to Ja’far al Sadiq have been accepted commonly by all Shi’i though the sequence may be different. The Bohras and the Nizari Ismails treat Ali as the Wasi and the first Imaam as Hasan. Abdullah al-Mehdi Billah was the 11th Imaam who in 909 CE found the Fatemi Caliphate in Tunisia which was formerly known as Ifriqiya which ended the occultation. The Fatemids then elongated their area towards the central west, now known as Morocco, Algeria, Libiya. Then they conquered Egypt in 969 CE, when Imaam Moiz, the fourteenth Imaam was in reign. Cairo was made the capital. After the reign of eighteenth Imaam, al-Mustansir Billah, two sects bifurcated, the Nizaris and the Mustaalis. The Nizari sect believed that the successor to imaam Mustansir was his son Nizar whereas the Mustaalis from whom the Dawoodi Bohras descend supported the other son, Mustaali as the heir of the Imaam. Until the reign of the 20th Imaam, Imaam Amir, the dynasty of the Fatemids continued considering Mustaali in a joint position of Imaam and Caliph.

Tayyibi-Hafizi schism:

When Imaam Amir passed away, again there was a bifurcation of the Ismaiili sects, the Tayyebi and the Hafizi. The Tayyibi sect believed that Imaam Amir had transferred the chain of Imaam succession to his two year old son, al Tayyib Abil-Qasim whereas the Hafizis claimed that Amir did not produce an heir. They supported Amir’s cousin al-Hafiz as the Imaam and Caliph. The Tayyibi Ismailis were the backers and supporters of Tayyeb.

The Queen of Yemen, Arwa al-Sulayhi commonly known as Hurratul Maleka publically supported the Tayyeb’s claim as the Imaam. Queen Arwa had been designated the highest rank in Yemeni Dawat during the reign of Imaam Mustansir in 1084 CE.

The Bohra Dissonance:

The Dawoodi Bohras are named after their twenty-seventh da’i Dawood bin Qutubshah (d. 1612). Sulaymani Bohras recognize an alternate line of da’is resulting from their twenty-seventh da’i, Sulayman bin Hasan (d. 1597). Correspondingly, Aliyah Bohras take after Ali ibn Ibrahim (d. 1637) as their twenty-ninth da’i having withdrawn from the Dawoodis in 1625. Neither have huge doctrinal contrasts with the Dawoodi Bohras; however their religious associations are distinctive. The Aliyah Bohras are driven by their forty-fourth da’i, Tayyib Diya al-Daimin, living in Baroda, India and number around five thousand. The Sulaymani initiative returned to Yemen not long after the Dawoodi-Sulaymani split and in the fundamental has stayed there. Their present pioneer, Sharaf al-Husayn ibn Hasan al-Makrami, is the forty-ninth da’i in the Sulaymani arrangement; Mansub is the chief agent in India who dwells in Baroda. The Sulaymanis number around four thousand in India and around seventy thousand in the region of Yemen Najran. After the 52nd Dai of the Dawoodi Bohras, a new sect was formed known as Qutbi Bohra who follows Khuzaima Qutbuddin.
The Dawoodi Bohras first Dai al Mutlaq was His Holiness Syedna Zoeb bin Moosa followed one after another up till the 52nd spiritual leader Dr. Syedna Mohammed Burhanuddin (RA) who is succeeded by the prominent, 53rd Dai-al-mutlaq, Dr. Syedna Mufaddal Saifuddin (TUS).

Language spoken by the Dawoodi Bohras:

The Dawoodi Bohras speak the language known as the Lisan al-dawat which is said to be the language of the Imaam. In his seclusion, the language which the Dai speaks is the language spoken by every Dawoodi Bohra. It is so because the sermons of the leader are in this language and can be easily understood by every big and small. This language is a combination of the Gujrathi, Arabic and the English language. This language, though it has a vernacular of Gujrathi language but it is written in Arabic font. Arabic is a bridge to the Lisan al-Dawat. The leader emphasizes everyone to dialect in the Lisan al-Dawat anywhere in the world for the purpose of restoring the culture.

Dress code:
The Dawoodi Bohra community follows a dress code everywhere. The Spiritual leader has given the same dress code of the men which he himself wears. The men wear a dress called saya, kurta, izar and topi (cap). The topi is of generally white colour with a golden border knitted tightly with thick cotton thread and golden kasab. The Dawoodi Bohras wear fully knitted kasab topis on happy occasions. Generally the kurtas and sayas are white in colour with susi izar which are to be worn in get together called Majalis and in mausoleums. This dress is called as Libas al-Anwar. It is obligatory for the community members including children to follow the dress code even in the marriage function of the community.

Similarly, the women in Dawoodi Bohra community follow a dress code known as ‘Rida’. The rida is in the form of a lower called as ghagra and the upper called as pardi which covers the head. The word rida is derived from the Arabic word meaning veil. Rida also means happiness in Arabic which may inspire the women to follow the dress code to acquire the happiness of the Spiritual leader. This dress too has to be worn when moving outside the house. The rida is colourful attire and beautifully designed so as to keep the essence of livelihood in the women along with purpose of veil. The rida is a dress to be worn after the misaaq ceremony is done. The young girls wear a special dress called jhabla izar and colourful topa (cap). In all religious schools, this dress code is followed as a uniform for boys and girls.

The food customs:

The Dawoodi Bohra community is a non vegetarian community. They follow a custom of sitting together in one thaal for their lunch or dinner. On any of the occasions, the people gather in jamaatkhana (community hall) and follow the same system. Here the men and women sit separately. The consumption of food begins with a pinch of salt after uttering ‘Bismillah’ and then sweet is served. It is a custom to keep the head covered while having food as a matter of respect to the food which is a bounty to Allah (ta). Like, one follows the table antiquates, similarly the Dawoodi Bohras follow the ‘aadaab of jaman’ i.e. the food etiquettes’ which are taught to them at a very tender age.

Dawoodi Bohra spiritual Leadership
The religious progression of the Dawoodi Bohras is basically Fatimid which serves as the delegate of the Imaam and is ongoing by the Da’i-al-mutlaq who is delegated by his forerunner in office. The role of Dai was made by the Queen of Yemen, Arwa binte Ahmed(otherwise called Hurratul Maleka) when the 21st Imaam went into seclusion giving them the ultimate powers as per the rules of Imaam’s orders. The Da’i chooses two others to the backup positions of Mazoon and Mukasir. These positions are trailed by the rank of shaikh and mullah, both of which are held by many Bohras. An amil (ordinarily an alum of the higher learning of al-Jami’ah al-Sayfiyah) who leads of the local assembly in religious, social, and communal issues. The amil as a representative of the leader is sent to every town where a sizable number of people reside.

Khandesh:
Dhule is a district under the Khandesh region. So it would be unfair to leave this region without a short discussion about it.

Khandesh is a surely understood locale for its ancient and rich legacy. Its way of life is old as well as multifaceted. Numerous groups are cheerfully dwelling in the lap of this district.

Arya, Non-arya and Mughal societies and its amalgamation:
Khandesh displays a homogeneous blending of diverse societies of Arya, Non-arya, Buddha, and Mughals. Adivasis (primitive tribes) occupying in and at the foot-slopes of Satpuda slopes have held their unique traditions and customs even today. Theirs is an antiquated unique culture and is more seasoned than the Arya intrusion in this nation. A gathering of daring and itinerant tribe of Aryas called Ahir/Abhir settled in this locale and the subgroups of this tribe like Gurjar, Ahir, and Gavali individuals changed the situation of Khandesh for advancement.

The Mughal rulers-Akbar, Jahangir, Shahajahan, Aurangzeb and Danial and Farukhi Kings have left engravings of their way of life and standard on Khandesh. Satvahan rulers who were highly awed by Buddhist logic and the hollows and frescoes cut by them at Pitalkhore close to the Chalisgaon town of Jalgaon area demonstrate the consistent amalgamation of societies in this region.

Different hypothesis on the nomenclature of Khandesh:

There are different opinions about how the province of Khandesh got its name. Some of the theories about it are described below-

I) Khandesh is the locale of Ahirs who worshipped Lord Krishna, who is affectionately called "Kanha" by his lovers. They alluded to this as nation (desh) of Kanha subsequently Kanhadesh which got the name 'Khandesh in due course of time'.

II) According to another perspective, Kanbai (Kandevi) is the divinity of numerous groups of this locale. Henceforth nation of Kandevi subsequently Kandesh which further transformed into' 'Khandesh'.

III) Still some have diverse perspective concerning numerous years this area was under control of Muslim rulers who were known by the name 'Khan'. Their nation consequently named 'Khandesh'.

IV) One more view expresses that as this area was the mine (privately called khan) of human pearls and gems and mineral assets. In this manner it is named as 'Khandesh'.

Tribes, groups and tongues of Khandesh:

Tribes-Since remote past, really differing sorts of tribes and groups have been living joyfully together in this place where there is Khandesh. Planned tribes incorporate Gond, Bhil, Konkana, Pavara, Gavit, Pardhi, Tadvi; Vimukta Jaties incorporate Kaikadi, Kanjarbhat, Gorbanjara, Lamani, Jogi, Pardeshi Bhamta, Ramoshi Vadar, Chhapparband; Nomadic tribes incorporate Gosavi, Bairagi, Sanyasi, Beldar, Kingarivale, Ghisadi, Gopal, Dombari, Dhelari and different in reverse incorporate Gavali, Kongadi, Rangari, Tambat, Sonar (Smiths), Bhavsar, Sutar, Pinajara, Tamboli and Schedule standings incorporate the general population fitting in with Mahar, Mang, Chambhar, Mehatar (Scavengers) Jangam, Mochi, Dhor, Khatik, Garudi, Meghwal groups. Alongside them, the propelled groups too have been staying since remote past.
Vernaculars major tongue of this area is the dialect of Ahirs called Ahir-wani which further truncated to ‘Ahirani’. It is otherwise called 'Akkadibhasha'. Ahirani is spoken to by distinctive sub-dialects of diverse shades, for example, Leva patidari, Gujarau, Bagalani and so forth. Antiquated vernaculars incorporate Pavri, Dehwali, Bhili, Tadvi, and Warali. Other lesser spread lingos incorporate Vanjari, Bhavsari, Pardeshi, Beldari, Mehatari, Panchali, Dhori, Mahar, Mangi, and so on.

Adivasi (primitive) societies of Khandesh:

Deep in the soils of Khandesh lays the foundation of Adivasi societies. The requirement for making of Nandurbar as an exceptional Adivasi region mirrors this very reality. The adivasi living in the slopes of Satpuda are the surviving successors of Mohenjo Daro and Hadappa societies. Their way of life mirrors their association with the extremely unique society of this nation. The social capital of these adivasis is ‘Dab’ in the Satpuda. The small colonies that are situated at remote spots in Navapur, Nandurbar, Dhadgaon, Saakri, Yawal, Raver, Chopada, are reproductions of old societies. Gonds and Bhils are significant occupants. They incorporate sub tribes, for example, Rajgond, Maharaja Gonds, Pachhashi Gonds, Bada Gonds, Pavaras, Gavit, Tadvi, and Barelas. They Gods worshipped by them are Devmogara Mata, Ganda Thaakur, Raja Fanay, Mandhar Mata, Ravan, Meghnaath, Hirava Deva, Motha Dev, Waagh dev, Kanasari mata, Holika. By worshiping regular symbols of these Gods, they offer supplications to God to the 'Natural force'. Indeed, even in the amazing states of starvation or catastrophes, they excitedly observe Holi, Divali, Gandi Divali, Navai, and Pola. Being mother commanded family culture, ladies' uniformity and flexibility is an esteemed trademark.

People expressions and specialists of Khandesh:

Khandesh is an affectionate partner locale of society expressions. Numerous Art cherishing gatherings are scattered in this district. Huge gatherings of Mahar and Mang groups acquire the natural soul of conventional expressions. It is suitably said in Khandesh-"Singing and moving (is found) at Mahar's home and perusing, composing at Brahmin's". Late times have changed the points and method for expressions, yet extravagance of customary expressions is still noticeable in their homes. Presently a day Mang, Mahar groups display singing, moving, music playing, acting, through distinctive society expressions, for example, people plays, Tamashas (customary stage acts), symphony, band gathering and banjo bunches. This is clear from the gatherings of Bhika Bhima Sangvikar and Anand Loknatya Mandal. Fugadi move of ladies in most likely all groups, Bhillau move of Bhill, and Viroba move of Dhanagars (Shepherds) are entirely well known among the general population.

Dawoodi Bohras in Dhule district

The Dawoodi Bohra sect is scattered in the areas of Dhule district with a population of approximately 1000 to 1500 pupils having one to five houses also in different villages of the district.
1.2) NECESSITY OF THE STUDY:-

a) Background (Status)

1. Dhule is considered as an adivasi belt in the Khandesh region of Maharashtra. So it may be thought that the literacy rate here may not be 100 percent.

2. The Dawoodi Bohra sect is one of the sects of Shia Muslims. This community is scarce and scattered in this area. Similarly this sect is spread throughout the world with only one spiritual leader followed by the whole sect. The need for research only in this sect is to understand the eminency of their leader and his work especially in the field of education, to study the concept of the education system managed by the leader.

3. Quran is a religious book of Islam and the Olomas (learned) of Islamic study say that this book is a source of education in the field of science, business, sociology history etc and if one is able to read and understand it, he/she can lead a satisfactory and successful life. Any person may be called a literate if he is able to read, write and understand any language. So with this concept in mind the need to understand the literacy rate in the sect and the education system managed by their spiritual leader was felt.

b) Research Problem

1. With advanced technologies and western culture, people are forgetting their origin of religion.

2. Every community is guided by some leader and they work on the various issues of their community. Dawoodi Bohra community is also guided by a spiritual leader and does constructive work regarding the various issues of their community.

3. The researcher feels the need to understand what work he has done and his management in the field of Qur’anic education and whether the benefit of his work is reaching the masses which are following him.

4. The researcher wants to understand the effect of his leadership in the field of Qur’anic education especially in a remote place, Dhule district of Maharashtra which is an area under Adivasi belt where the males and females are scattered in small villages and towns of Dhule district.

5. The researcher feels the need to understand the future vision of the leader in the Qur’anic field and his work to fulfil the vision.

1.3) OBJECTIVES OF THE STUDY:-

1. To identify and to analyse the Quranic education system in Dawoodi Bohra sect.

2. To analyze the quality of leaders in Dawoodi Bohra community.
3. To identify the problems in Quranic education system in the Dawoodi Bohra sect.
4. To develop a novel conceptual model for an improved Quranic education system in Dawoodi Bohra sect.
5. To identify the number of people inspired by the leader to have at least one hafiz in the house.
6. To investigate the number of people who have actually taken a step to bring the vision of the leader into reality.
7. To find out the interest of the people to read, understand and memorize Quran.
8. To analyze the best time for memorizing Quran.
9. To ascertain the faith of the followers on their leader.
1.4) HYPOTHESIS:-

H.1. There is a significant relationship between memorizing Quran and the faith in the spiritual leader.

H.2. There is a direct relationship between the leader and Quranic education system.

H.3. There is a co-relation between the benefits of memorizing and their status in the society.

H.4. There is no proportionate relationship between huffaz and the population of people in the targeted area.
1.5) Scope of the study

We can create awareness in the sect (community) to read, understand and maximize the number of huffaz (one who memorizes the whole Quran) in the community in general. The study of this type will help to implement it in the other areas of education to increase the literacy rate.

If the leader is capable and eminent and has faithful followers, then it can help to develop a proper system and anything can be achieved successfully to a great extent.

The Topical scope of the study covers the education system that is related only to learning to read, understand and memorize Quran.

The Geographical scope of the study has been restricted to the Dawoodi Bohras in the Dhule district of Maharashtra state which will cover all the towns and villages in it.

The Analytical scope covers the fulfilment of the objectives set out for study.

The Functional scope is confined to offering certain meaningful suggestions for the improvement of the education system related to learning to read and memorizing of Quran so that the vision of the leader is realized.
1.6) Research Design:

On the basis of the research problem, the objectives and the hypothesis were first formulated keeping in mind the Dawoodi Bohra spiritual leader, Dawoodi Bohra community. Literature related to the topic was collected and reviewed from various printed research journals, books and through websites. About 100 articles and books were reviewed. The primary data was collected through a questionnaire through random sampling...

a. Through Dawoodi Bohra community members from Dhule district.
   - Approximate population-1000
   - Sample size-202

b. From Dawoodi Bohra Huffaz which were gathered from throughout the world on an occasion of Al Jamea tus Saifyah exams.
   - Approximate population-500
   - Sample size-79

c. From students throughout the world who gathered on the occasion of Ashara Mubaraka, a congregation held in Houston, America.
   - Approximate population-100
   - Sample size-50

The primary data was also collected through field surveys of Qur’anic education institutes of Dawoodi Bohras and the various relevant organisations. Expert interviews were also taken to get the information.

The secondary data was collected from relevant websites and books of da’awat to get the information about the system of Qur’anic education in Dawoodi Bohra and about the spiritual leader.

On the basis of data that could be collected, chaperization scheme was formed and the relevant data was used wherever required. The quantitative data was analysed through SPSS software. This data was interpreted through required tables and graphs.

On the basis of interpreted data the hypothesis was tested and the conclusions were drawn relevant to the objectives and the research problem. Some suggestions were given after... understanding the total concept of Qur’anic education system managed under Dawoodi Bohra spiritual leadership.
1.7) Limitations of the study

The limitations as stated in the synopsis, the areas are as follows:

1) The reliability of the study area may depend on the authenticity of the information provided by the respondents.

2) The methodology to be accepted; the method of data collection, analysis and interpretation may have their own limitations.

3) The study is related to only the registered Dawoodi Bohra people in Dhule district of Khandesh region.

4) Cost and time constraints might have affected the effectiveness of the study though every attempt will be made to keep the spirit of the objectives and research methodology intact.

5) The source or the population of the respondents are totally based on the information provided by the top management of the Dawoodi Bohra sect.

6) The study is limited to Quranic education system only, while the regular academic education is excluded in this study.
