CONTENTS

Introduction .............................................. 1
Object, Material and Methods ....................................... 2
Classification .................................................. 3
Previous work, Organization of the thesis ............................................. 4

Part I. Taxonomic study of freshwater algae
(exclusive of diatoms) of Aurangabad district with notes on their ecology .......................... 6 - 9
Map 1 ............................................................ 10
Systematic account .................................................. 12 - 304
Ecological notes .................................................. 305 - 355

Part II. A comparative study of algae of a semipermanent pond with those grown in cultures in the laboratory from the soil samples collected from the same pond and using pond water as culture medium ............................................. 356 - 378

Concluding Remarks ............................................. 379 - 381
Summary ........................................................... 382 - 384
References ....................................................... 385 - 406

Reprints (in the pocket)

1. Oedogoniaceae and Zygnemataceae of Aurangabad, Maharashtra.

2. A new species of Katagnymene

3. Additions to the desmid flora of Marathwada, Maharashtra

4. Chroococcales of Aurangabad district, Maharashtra

5. Filamentous Myxophyceae of Aurangabad district, Maharashtra