PREFACE

The government is the main functionary and promoter of any social and economic developmental activities. The government can play a very important role for the development of modern society.

The research topic entitled “A Study on Revenue Receipts and Expenditures of the Government of Assam” has been undertaken to investigate the Revenue Generation of the Government of Assam and its expenditure for the socio-economic development in Assam.

I have keen interest on the financial discipline of the Government of Assam which is reflected by its annual budget. Over the years, the role of the government in socio-economic development especially in the Social Sectors and Economic Sectors development of the government of Assam has been increasing. A huge amount of expenditure has been spent by the government for these sectors every year. But the facilities provided by the government usually show meager improvement years after years in the state.
These reasons led me to undertake the present study to examine the state government Revenue Generation and its utilisation for development of different Social and Economic Sectors in Assam in the last ten years. An attempt has been made through this study to understand the overall financial strength, targeted revenue generation and actual generation of revenue and its expenditure over the years for the wellbeing of the inhabitants and also for the socio-economic development of Assam.
