Acknowledgement

First of all, I would like to thank Professor Ranjit Kumar Dev Goswami for being my supervisor. It is a great privilege to work under a wonderful person and a fatherly figure like him. His encyclopaedic knowledge is to be cherished throughout my whole life. His motivation, good advice and support have helped me to overcome all obstacles during the course of my Ph.D. research. I thank him for his invaluable and constructive suggestions during the planning and development of this thesis. His willingness to give me time so generously has been very much appreciated.

My sincere thanks to the other faculty members of the Department of English, Gauhati University including Prof. Nandana Dutta and Dr. Bibhash Choudhury who helped me out with necessary and invaluable advice. I would like to thank the non-teaching staff of the Department for their permission to use the resources of the Department.

My sincere respect and gratitude to late Dr. Uttara Debi who had been, my teacher, my mentor, and my former colleague in IDOL, Gauhati University, and who breathed her last on 6th February, 2013. My intellectual debt to this great teacher is more than she might ever know.

It would not have been possible to write this Ph.D. thesis without the untainted help and support of my father Chartradhar Das, my mother Padmalata Pathak, and my sister Bharati for their unequivocal support throughout, for which mere expression of thanks does not suffice. I would like to thank my wife Ritimoni Bordoloi for her support and great patience at all times.

I am particularly grateful to the authority of Krishna Kanta Handiqui State University, Guwahati where I am presently working as a faculty member in the Department of English. The generosity and support received from the Vice Chancellor Prof. Srinath Baruah is highly appreciated. I would like to acknowledge the academic and technical support received from the Institute of Distance and Open Learning, Gauhati University in which I was an employee till September, 2010. I would like to thank Prof. Kandarpa Das, the Director of the institute, for his motivation, support and assistance since the beginning of my Ph.D. work in June, 2007.

My special thanks to the staff of Krishna Kanta Handiqui Library, Gauhati University. I would also like to acknowledge with thanks the help that I had received from the staff of Indian Council of Historical Research (ICHR) located in Gauhati University Campus; Central library of KKH State Open University; IDOL, GU Library; and the Central library of the Indian Institute of Technology, Guwahati. I am also thankful to the staff members of Ramesh Mohan Library at the EFL University, Hyderabad campus, which I had visited in July, 2008 for nearly a month.

As per suggestions made in the revised Ph.D. Regulation 2010, of Gauhati University, I used parts of the present work in two research papers. The first paper “Identity and Subjectivity: A Psychoanalytic Reading of Salman Rushdie and Amitav Ghosh”, was published in Indian Journal of Postcolonial Literature, P.G. Dept. of English, Newman College, Kerala, Vol.9. No. 1, June, 2009. (ISSN 0974-7370). The second paper “The Notion of Indianness and Its Contexts in Contemporary Indian Writing in English” was published in Dibrugarh University Journal of English Studies, No 20, 2011. (ISSN 0975-5659). I would like to thank the editors of both the journals for accepting these two papers for publication.
