ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

At the outset, I thank my Research Supervisor, Dr. R. Shankar, Prof. & Head, Department of Sociology, Bharathidasan University. Not only has he been a source of motivation, encouragement and strength but also allowed me to grow as a researcher and person, allowed me to make mistakes and learn from them, encouraged logical derivations rather than acceptance of opinion or thoughts per se.

To Dr. M. Thavâmani, member of the Doctoral Committee, I remain indebted for his invaluable suggestions and guidance all through the research period.

I am grateful to the Bureau of Police Research & Development for permitting me to use and reproduce from their vast database on police.

My heart felt gratitude to Mr. Sunil Singh IPS, Mr. Shakeel Akhtar IPS and Mr. Ashutosh Shukla IPS for their unstinting support in accessing data from the Coimbatore Police Range and Chennai City Police.

I express my sincere thanks to Sri P. M. Bakshi, ex-member Law Commission, who through his letters, during the formative phase of the study, helped in structuring the focus of research.

I am thankful to Mr. M. K. Shukla IPS, who not only sent on a copy of his research work on Women Police Station but also other literature for reference.

I am grateful to Mr. R M Lindley, Director, Institute for Employment Research, University of Warwick for forwarding literature on UK police.

I express my thanks to the honourable judges of the Family Court for permitting me to interact with the Family Court staff and to observe proceedings.
I am thankful to the Social Welfare Department for all their help in the study.

I am grateful to Dr. J. Jayalakshmi and Dr. Vasanth Kumar from Madras University for their help and suggestions in the research.

I remain indebted to many others who have significantly influenced this research and take this opportunity to express my gratitude:

   to Amit for all his support throughout the study, helping me locate material for reference to Ms. Swamalatha, Ms. Alexander, Mr. Jayachandran, Dr. Swamalakshmi and Dr. Niraimathi and Ms. Sumithra for their support in different phases of the research.
   to the research scholars, Ms Shaista Ms Lalitha, Mr. Murugan, Ms. Sivagami, Mr. Alagu Sundaram Mr. Tamilarasan and other scholars who have always been encouraging and helpful through the study.
   to the women police for taking out time from their off duty hours to participate in the study.
   to all the study-participants – petitioners, counter-petitioners of the AWPS, NGO heads and Counselors for actively participating and making this research possible.
   to Mrs. S. Rajeshwari for being a quiet pillar of strength to Mr. Vijay Kumar and Ms. Amudhavalli for all their support.
   to my sons Advyit and Ananya and all family members for being so patient and supportive through testing times.

Praneeta Varma