ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would like to acknowledge my supervisor, Dr. Y. Ben Lotha, for his constant encouragement and guidance in writing of this thesis. His insight, patience and gentle prodding have enabled me to commit myself to this work, until its final completion.

My special thanks go to Shri. C. Kholong Ao, Director, Department of Higher Education, Nagaland, who, since his tenure as the Principal, Kohima College mentored and guided me. I would also like to acknowledge the support of the History Department, Kohima College and in particular, mention a special thanks to Shri. K. Sekhose, previous Head of Department, for his constant encouragement in taking up this research work and allowing me space within the department to grow as a teacher. The encouragement offered by my senior colleagues Shri. N. Sakhrie and Dr. Kevileno Sakhrie are also deeply appreciated.

A host of institutions and people have contributed to the making of this work-The Archives Section: Department of Art and Culture, and Mr. Bendangyapang, Research officer, who guided me through the tedious exploration of the colonial records; The Nagaland University Central Library and The State Library, Kohima, Nehru Memorial Library, New Delhi, Indian Council of Historical Research, New Delhi, and National Archives, New Delhi. I am deeply grateful for the translation work aided by Kedoroko, in Kohima District, Ating Konyak in Mon District, Moasunup in Mokokchung District and Nzanbeni for Wokha District. My gratitude also goes out to Uncle Zapuvisie Lhousa, from Mezoma Village, a researcher himself at 81 years of age, who had generously lend me valuable books from his personal library. I also wish to thank the following Departments for allowing me the use of material for my work: Department of Land Resources, Department of Soil and Water Conservation, Department of PHED and Department of Forest, Environment, Ecology and Wildlife.

I am especially thankful to my friend Wapangla, who set up a temporary residence at my home to help and encourage me during and after my field trips.

This work would not have been possible without my mother, Ayinla and my father, Tali Alinger. I would like to thank them profusely for their love, tireless help and considerate support; and to my siblings and their families for their encouragement.

A special thanks to Alemsong, my sister in law and my two nephews, Toshimeren and baby Maongka, who light up my world.

Finally, to God, ‘For in him we live and move and have our being’ Acts 17:28.

Eunice Alinger
