PREFACE AND ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This study reports the results of field works undertaken among the Bodo-Kachari and Rabha of Goalpara district, Assam, for nearly 3 years in between 2009-2012. The field work was undertaken in a number of phases.

The study was undertaken under the supervision of Dr. A. N. M. Irshad Ali, former Professor and head of the department, Anthropology Department, Gauhati University.

Thanks are gratefully extended to the Head of the Department and to all the members of Department of Anthropology, Gauhati University, for the continuous encouragement and necessary guidance during the preparation of this thesis.

I owe a special depth gratitude to the people of all the study villages in Goalpara district, without their co-operation my work would not have been possible.

I am also thankful to my mother, Smt. Beena Pani Brahma and my brother Shri Sandeep Roy and who helped me in all possible ways to get this thesis duly completed. Last but not the least I want to thank Shri Subhash Haloi for setting, binding and cover printing of the thesis.
