ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The feeling of culmination of PhD is just awesome and overwhelming. Scripting of the doctoral thesis has been one of the most inspiring and elevating experience which has enriched me and helped me in my personal and professional growth. In the process the knowledge gained is immense, priceless and invaluable.

I would like to express my feeling of gratitude and sincere thanks to all those without whose help and support my thesis would have not been completed.

No words would be enough to express my feelings of deep appreciation, gratefulness, indebtedness and reverence to my esteemed guide Dr Bharati V Pathak, Professor, School of Commerce, Gujarat University for her inspiration, invaluable guidance, everlasting encouragement and constructive criticism at all the stages of preparation of my thesis.

I also extend my thanks to the faculty members of School of Commerce for their kind support.

I express my special thanks to Dr Hemant Tiwari, Assistant Professor at Smt N. H. L. Medical College, Ahmedabad for helping me with SPSS and statistical analysis.

I sincerely thank the Director of GLS (J. P Shah) Institute of Business Administration, Dr Shefali Dani and also the former director of the institute Shri V B Patel, for their constant support and encouragement.

I convey my warm and heartfelt thanks to GLS Management who allowed me to take this work. I would also like to thank Dr Sarla Achuthan (Director of GLS centre for Research and development) for giving her valuable inputs and organising various seminars on research methodology which actually helped in the better understanding of the concepts.

I owe my deep and sincere thanks to my colleagues who have helped me in different ways to complete this study.
This research would not have been possible but for the help and cooperation extended by the IIM Ahmedabad library staff who helped me in collecting the secondary data by allowing me an access to software PROWESS.

Last but not the least my heartfelt thanks to my family members who helped me at each and every stage of my thesis. My mother in law Smt Nayana Modi gracefully shared the household duties with me, giving me enough time to pursue my research. My father in law Shri Rajesh Modi’s experience of Indian stock market proved to be invaluable. Discussions with him helped me at various stages of my research. He has been the cornerstone of my research. My son Rishabh Modi and daughter Diya Modi understood their responsibilities at such a tender age and this gave me enough freedom to carry out my work. My husband Dr Dhaval Modi was the one who motivated me to pursue my PhD from the day of filling the form to the completion of my work. He has always stood by me and like a loving guardian reminded me of the deadlines for the research work. I am thankful to my parents Shri Rameshwar Das Shah and Smt Kamal Shah for their never ending support and motivation. I am indebted to all my family members for their constant support, stimulation, enthusiasm, cooperation and care which made my task achievable.

Swati Shah
(Research Scholar)