PREFACE

This thesis represents the result of the comparative study of the festivals of Assam and France. Bihu and Christmas are taken as the special references from Assam and France, respectively. For this study, field work has been done in different areas of Assam. A number of French tourists have also been interviewed in Majuli and Guwahati for collecting primary data.

This study was undertaken under the supervision of Gulab Jha, Professor and Head of Department of Foreign Languages, Gauhati University and Professor Birinchi K. Medhi, Department of Anthropology, Gauhati University. I feel immense pleasure in expressing my respect and gratitude to my supervisors and guides Dr Gulab Jha and Dr Birinchi K. Medhi for their valuable guidance and affectionate behaviour in all phases of my work. Their guidance and encouragement throughout the course of this study have been of great value for me. Without their constant encouragement, suggestion, supervision and sympathetic criticism, it would not have been possible to complete this thesis.

I would like to take this opportunity to express my gratitude to the people who have been instrumental in the successful completion of this thesis. I express my thanks to the authority of Global School of Foreign Languages, Guwahati for their kin interest in my work and also providing me with all possible help. I am also thankful to Mitu Khataniar and Niranjan Borbayan of Uttar Kamalabari Satra for helping me during the field work at Majuli.

I would like to thank all the people of my study area for their precious time which they have invested in this research and for their trust and honesty. My thanks are also due to Tapan Talukdar for typing this manuscript.

Throughout the study the constant supports of all my friends and well-wishers have helped me immensely. I thank the Almighty God for His benevolence. I would like to take this opportunity to thank my brother Kaushik Chakravorty for help me in arranging and compiling my thesis. I thank my parents Dr. Paresh Chakravorty and Mrs Monika Chakravorty the manifestation of God on earth. Their belief and faith in me have made me indebted to them forever.
