Contents

Chapter - I:
Historical background:
- Early history of the state.
- Land & the people of Sikkim.
- Geographical setting of the state.
- Problems of Land-lockism.
- Early political system and socio-economic & cultural life.

Chapter - II:
Sino-Indian Relations:
- Sikkim-Tibet relations; social, cultural and political.
- Impact of British Policy on Sikkim-Tibet Relations.
- Impact of emergence of People's Republic of China & Indo-Sikkim Relations.

Chapter - III:
India's relations with Sikkim before independence:
- East India Company's venture for trade relations with Sikkim.
- The Treaty of Titalia (1917)
- The cession of Darjeeling.
- The Treaty of 1861.
- The Mission of Jhon Edgar.
- The Mission of Colman Macaulay.
- Suggestions of Bengal Govt. (1886)
- Anglo-Chinese Convention (1890).
- Trade Regulation Act (1893).
- Recognition of Sidkeong Namgyal as the successor of Sikkim Throne.
- Erection of boundary pillars.
- Lord Curzon's Tibetan Policy.
- Young Husband's Expedition.
- Lhasa Convention
- Transfer of political charge of Sikkim from Bengal Govt. to the Government of India (1906)
- Simla Convention (1914)
- Social and Political reforms in Sikkim during the reign of Sidkeung Namgyal (1914)
- Restoration of autonomy to Sikkim by British Government (1916)
- Lord Linlithgow's visit to Sikkim (1938) to strengthen the ties between India and Sikkim.

Chapter - IV:

India's Relations with Sikkim since Independence:

- Lapse of British paramountcy and its impact on the relations between India and Sikkim.
- Rise of various political parties with different social and political objectives.
- Nehru's visit to Sikkim (1952) and Economic development of Sikkim with Indian Aid.
- Sikkim's demand for participation in security system.
- Sikkim subject regulation Act, 1861.
- Thondup Namgyal's attitude towards India.
- Renaming of Indian Residency as India House.
- Tripartite Agreement in May, 1973
- Election of 1974 and its impact on Sikkim.
- Political development in Sikkim for establishing Democratic Government.
- 36th Amendment Act, and state of associate state for Sikkim.
- 38th Amendment Act, Sikkim becomes the integral part of India.

Chapter - V:

Conclusion:

- Sikkim's special status.
- Added importance of Sikkim for the security of India in the present political environment.
- Potential of Economic development in Sikkim.
- Suggestions for better relations between the Central Government and the State of Sikkim.

Bibliography: