Bibliographical References
[Using a slightly altered version of the Documentation Research and Training Centre, Bangalore, Referencing style, each entry is rendered in two parts separated by a period. The first part, containing the name of the author followed by the year of publication in parenthesis, occupies the first line. The second part, containing the remaining two bibliographic elements, title and location, occupies the next line. To give clarity to the computer script, it starts after five spaces in second line. The parenthesized number in the text corresponds to the relevant reference numbered below, while the references themselves are arranged by an alphanumeric system in order to avoid repetition].
