I had a profound desire to contribute my thinking on the Amending process in Federal constitution with special Reference to India which has always remained debatable issue over the years. The dream became true in 1988 when I was registered myself for the Degree of Doctor of Philosophy in law in respect of the aforesaid subject.

Professor N.V. Paranjape has been generous with his time and guidance in giving me his kind, candid, wise and illuminating advise throughout my research work whenever being confronted with difficult problems, I have drawn upon him. I acknowledge my indebtedness to him for allowing me privilege of working under him, his kind supervision and guidance but for his personal interest, belovelyt guidance and illuminating criticism and suggestions this work would never have been accomplished and seen the light of the day.
Professor Paranjape is one of the leading academicians in the field of law and legal research. He also has a reputation of being a well-known writer in the legal field as is evident from the fact that there are more than a dozen of standard publications to his credit, running in several editions.

I have no words to articulate my deep sense of gratitude towards Prof. Paranjape, my supervisor, for the immense ways in which he helped me in preparation of this thesis. He was potential source of inspiration. It was his constant expert guidance that enabled me to complete my thesis on the subject, the compass and ambit of which is very vast.

I have taken benefit of the services of the staff and officials of the Library of the Institute of Constitutional and Parliamentary Studies, Delhi and the Indian Law Institute Delhi, Supreme Court Delhi, The Library of National Law School Bangalore, The Library of High Court of Indore, The Library of the Vidhan Sabha Madhya Pradesh, Bhopal. I am indebted to their services and assistance. My special thanks are due to the librarian and staff of the Ravishankar University and Govt. Chhattisgarh College, Raipur for the ungrudging help.
IX

I am also thankful to the Principal Government Chhattisgarh college Raipur for his help and support in this endeavour.

I express my deep reverence to my father Shri Harikrishanji Sharma who kept me on the right track through-out the period I was working on my research project. He exhorted me quite often to come out of the shackles of idleness and take-up the right job at the right time in the right earnest. It was this urge and animate in him which always provided me inspiration to complete this research work within the prescribed time schedule.

No words can be enough to convey my thanks to my life companion Smt. Premlata Sharma for the illumitable ways in which she helped me in preparation of this thesis in particularly for the sustaining my will to work.

Finally I thank to Shri Sanjay Chhabra for typing my thesis correctly and in time.

Dated : 21/11/1
Raipur.

SHYAM VIHARI SHARMA