ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Professor K.A. Jayaseelan, my supervisor, has taught me how to grapple with the intricacies of linguistic problems. With great patience and concern but with sharp and unflinching criticism did he go through the several drafts of my thesis. In him I found a fine blend of eminent scholarship and the qualities of an excellent human being. I am very grateful to him.

I am thankful to Professor Amritavalli for making herself available for discussions. She always took keen interest in my work as well as my welfare.

I gained a lot from the discussions I had with Ms. Alice Davison, Professor K. Subbarao, Professor Probal Dasgupta, Dr. Vijay Krishnan and Mr. Robert D. Van Valin, Jr. of SUNY. They provided me with insightful suggestions.

In the making of this dissertation I have been fortunate enough to get help from many friends. I am grateful to

- Neerav, Arshad, Ray, Kaul, Mujeeb and Ukil who made my stay at Hyderabad very comfortable, very exciting and very entertaining;

- Panchanan Mahto and Hemlata for discussions on several points in my thesis;
- Ms. Sonya Surabhi Gupta and Ms. Rosa Martin Gascuena for helping me with the Spanish data;

- V. Castor from Cornell University, New York, who sent me an important paper;

- Rajshekhar and Shiromani for their concern for me;

- Salahuddin in whom I found an interesting companion and a helping friend;

- Junaid for always ready to help me;

- Dominic for helping me with proof-reading;

- Mr. Sankara Rao who made an excellent and a quick job of typing this thesis;

- Mr. V.R. Krishna and Mrs. Meena Krishna who looked after my interests at home;

I am very thankful to Professor Radha Mohan, Professor S.K. Bagchi, Professor N.K. Singh and Professor B.P. Singh, who always encouraged me and provided me with all kinds of official help and I needed from my university and college.

Hari was with me at every point in the preparation of this thesis -- be it discussion or writing or proof-reading or xeroxing or submission. He, Sunita and Mridula took time away from their busy schedule to proof-read and edit this thesis meticulously. I wish I could thank them suitably.
I remember with gratitude the companionship Amita gave to me, my wife and children during our stay at Hyderabad.

And I wonder if at all I could have completed this research without the love and care my wife - Rita, my son - Abhishek and my daughter - Shinjika have given to me.
