Preface

Throughout the ages women have been the center point for development of civilizations. They have always been significant contributors to all aspects of economy and society. Yet the status of women in most of aspects has always been in crucial stages. Women now days are proving worth as human resource. They are trying to regain and rehabilitate professional growth and development.

Bundelkhand is a region with lot of imbalances in terms of resources and their utilization leading to industrial as well as economic backwardness. Women folk of Bundelkhand are hard working and have the capacity to survive in most adverse conditions that has worked as driving force for the present study.

Present study has been designed to explore the current status of women from Bundelkhand in industrial units of Public, Private and Service Sector. Present study is headed to find the trend of women employees of the region amongst the three sectors and reasons for that and above all to suggest a framework for these women employees to enhance their capacity in terms of productivity, efficiency and effectiveness along with improvement in current economic status.

Another aspect of interest is to check how women employees of the region are managing their survival in male dominated industrial environment with available monetary and non-monetary facilitations and coordination level.

The study is directed to discover the positive and negative aspects related to development of women employees of Bundelkhand region and thus has significance for administration while deciding regulatory framework for the development of women employees.