suggests that US officials can and should engage these autocratic allies while pushing for evolutionary change as a preemptive strategy to avoid revolutionary change.

REFERENCES
(* indicates a primary source)

*“Interview with Saad Eddin Al Othmani, leader of Morocco’s Party of Justice and Development,” Arab Reform Bulletin, Carnegie Endowment for “Jordanian MPs Slam Government Plan to Reform Education,” Daily Star, Beirut,

“Middle East Students Learn about America in the Mid-West,” Purdue News, July

“Morocco: Paper Says Islamists Sure of Victory at Next Legislative Elections,” Casablanca Al-Ahdath al-Maghribiyah, February 1, 2006, translated from Arabic to English by the Foreign Broadcast Information Service (FBIS) or Open Source Center (OSC), Document ID: GMP20060201710043.

“Mubarak: Democracy in the Arab World Can’t Be Imposed from Outside,” USA

*“Secretary General of Morocco’s Islamist PJD Party Interviewed on Political to English by the Foreign Broadcast Information Service (FBIS) or Open Source Center (OSC), Document ID: GMP20060420380001.

“Should the United States Support Islamists?” Program Brief, Nixon Center, October 24, 2005.

“Tentative Steps: Democracy Drive by America Meets Reality in Egypt,” Wall Street
Journal, April 11, 2005.

“US remains committed to reform in Arab World despite Islamist gains, such Ackerman, Peter and Adrian Karatnycky (2005), How Freedom Is Won: From Civic Resistance to Durable Democracy, New York: Freedom House.

*Bush, George W. (2003), “Remarks by President at the 20th Anniversary of the National Endowment for Democracy”, Office of the Press Secretary, Washington D.C., November 6, 2003, URL:
accessed on February 6, 2007.

Bush, George W. (2004), “President’s Remark at the 2004 Republican Convention,
New York,” Office of the Press Secretary, Washington D.C., September 2, 2004,

Max.Com, December 16, 2005, URL:
http://www.newsmax.com/archives/articles/2005/12/15/151907.shtml,
accessed on April 14, 2007.

Press Secretary, Washington D.C., January 30, 2005, URL:
http://www.whitehouse.gov/news/releases/2005/01/20050130-2.html,
accessed on April 13, 2007.

accessed on March 24, 2008.

URL: http://www.whitehouse.gov/news/releases/2005/01/20050130-2.html,
accessed on April 14, 2007.

D.C.: White House, September 5, 2006, URL:

Dobbins, James et al. (2003), America’s Role in Nation-Building: From Germany to Iraq, Santa Monica, CA: RAND.

Euractiv (2001), Afghanistan Conference to Take Place in Bonn.

*The Federalist, No. 8, New York: Random House, 1941.

---------------------------