ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

“A teacher affects eternity: he can never tell where his influence stops.” Henry Adams.

This adage has been proved true time and again during the tenure of my association with Dr. Avijit Pathak, my guide, my supervisor, my mentor. Avijit Sir has been much more than a teacher. He has been a true friend and a driving force in every step of my life. His unwavering faith and believe in me has seen me through the toughest and darkest of hours, and I would like to take this opportunity to thank him for being such a role model. His insightful comments, observations and musings on sociology, in particular, and life, in general, have been constant sources of inspiration and have propelled me to push the boundaries and think for myself. Sir, it has been an absolute honour to have worked with you.

This day would have been a distant dream without the constant support and encouragement of my family members, and I would like to offer my heartfelt gratitude to them.

To Dadaji, a strong propagator of education, and who has always held the whole family closely together with his principles, fortitude and above all, affection.

To Mahesh Mamaji and Mamiji, who have always been my home away from home.

My brothers, the five pillars of strength — Aditya, Nishant, Anirudh, Sourabh and Arjun.

I have a true friend in my sister Nisha and my brother-in-law Raj. Special mention needs to be made of my nephew and niece, Yuval and Vedantika (Vani), who are my gateway to a fantastical world and through whom I get to relive my childhood. A vote of thanks to all my cousins and family members, who have been there for me in every possible manner.
I am blessed to have Pallavi; to understand my silence and Manali (Telu); to understand my words, as my friends. Their humour and good counsel have always helped me to put things in perspective and have helped me to see life in a clearer light.

Megha, Shadab, Neena, Nidhi, Moitree, Vikram, Aditi, you all make it worthwhile! Manju, Jyoti, Nahid, Suman, Amita, Shubhankshi and Vinita…cannot thank you enough for taking out your valuable time to help me with my work. My Banasthali gang — Kanchan, Barkha, Lipika, Asha, Kyati, Vinita and Nidhi — growing up with you all have defined me in more ways than one.

A special vote of thanks to the teachers, staff, students and their families of the five schools where I have conducted my field work. Their valuable thoughts and inputs have contributed majorly to my body of work. My experience at Gargi College (B.El. Ed Dept) and the interaction with the students and colleagues have benefited me immensely. The evening soirées and the interactive sessions at Avijit Sir’s residence have triggered many a thoughts and ideas to reflect upon.

The libraries at JNU, NCERT and NUEPA have been of critical importance to my thesis and I would like to thank the staff for extending their help and for cooperating in my endeavour.

Special mention needs to be made of all sociological thinkers and educationists, whose theories and thoughts underline the issues and debates raised in this thesis.

Last but not the least, I am really honoured to be a part of Jawaharlal Nehru University; a best thing of my life.
