I would take this opportunity to acknowledge all the individuals and institutions that helped me complete this work.

I do acknowledge the contribution of my guide Dr. Neera Grover, HOD Music Department, SNDT Women's University, Mumbai, for all her support and help. She has guided me through the doctoral program and spared time from her busy schedule. Also she has made it possible for me to carry on the work smoothly.

To my gurus Pt. Devi Prasad Chatterjee, Ex HOD of Instrumental Music Department and Shagird of Ustd. Ali Akbar Khan, Smt. Annapurna Devi and Pt. Nikhil Banerjee; Shri Divakar Pani and Shri Gopi Mohan Sharma whose blessings remain a continuous inspiration for my performance and studies in this field. throughout my training from Pt. Devi Prasad Chatterjee I have learnt the styles of his gurus also – very elaborately- which helped me in writing my thesis. Also my deepest regards to all my other teachers.

I owe my knowledge and interest in musicology and research to Prof. Dwidity Biswas, Sanskrit Department of Calcutta University and visiting Faculty of Rabindra Bharati University. She has also provided valuable informations about the vedic period.

I would like to thank all the scholars and musicians that I approached for informations, for their generosity and openness. Pt. Dipak Chowdhury -- an exponent of Maihar Gharana and student of Pt. Ravi Shankar, has been my teacher in RBU, and has provided a lot of information about his gharana and Baaj.

Dr. Aniya Ranajan Bandyopadhyay, the leading exponent of Vishnupur vocal Gharana and son of the late vocal and sitar maestro Late Shri Satya Kinkar Bandyopadhyay, and Pt. Manilal Nag, son of Late Gokul Nag – the chief exponent of Vishnupur Sitar Gharana, have given me a lot of information about this gharana.
I am thankful to Pt. Arvind Parikh, exponent of Imdadkhani Gharana and shagird of Late Ustad Vilayat Khan, who was generous with his time and shared a good lot of informations about his guru and gharana.

Shri Snajay Bandyopadhyay, Pt. Debu Chowdhury, Dr. Joep Bor, Dr. Pankajmala Sharma, Dr. Suneera Kasliwal, Dr. Mukesh Garg, Shri Rasik Hazare have spared time from their regular business – I am greatful.

Dr. S.A.K.Durga, the Ethnomusicologist and Professor of Music Department in Chennai University, has guided me with research methodology. She has also been very kind in giving me informations about globalization of sitar.

I am thankful to the managing committee and staff members of Indian Museum[Kolkata], National Library[Kolkata], Asiatic Society[Kolkata], Ramkrishna Mission Library[Kolkata], Indian Museum[Kolkata], SNDT Women’s University Central Library[Mumbai], NCPA Library[Mumbai], Asiatic Society Library[Mumbai], Dr. Kelkar Museum [Pune] etc. for their help in getting rare books and rare photographs. I would specially thank Mrs. Madiman of NCPA Library for her help and support.

I am greatful to my friends Anaya Thatte and Dr. Sangeeta Bapat for all their moral support and to my sisters in law – Shampa and Chumki.

My sister Madhumita and brother Sourav have been a good support for me. They have helped me out technically in completing my job. My student and little sister Dr. Apeksha has contributed in proof reading. Another student of mine Archana has transcripted all notations in Hindi. I am thankful to all of them.

My parents-in-law have always been a source of my mental support. My dear parents Shri Nitai Roy and Smt. Jyotsna Roy have been my inspiration in all aspects. Without their blessings and love my job would remain incomplete. I owe a very deep gratitude to them. My heart full of love and blessings to my son Diptorshi, whose presence itself is always an inspiration for me.

Finally, I would thanic my life partner, Jyotirmoy, who has contributed the most in my job. His inspiration, support and technical help have been the core encouragement for completion of this thesis.
