ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

First of all, I would like to thank Jesus, for in the beginning, God (Genesis 1:1) and when I lie down and sleep; I wake again, because the LORD sustains me (Psalm 3:5).

I express my sincere gratitude to my supervisor, Professor NVR Jyoti Kumar, Head, Department of Commerce, Mizoram University. A mentor, a gentleman and an encouragement to the truest sense of those words, I truly am fortunate to work with him. His keen enthusiasm and continuous motivation are the driving forces that made me attempt the apparent impossible, which makes the journey thrilling, and the achievement more to yearn for. Thank you, Sir.

To my father, Lalthangliana Varte – Your prayers and support are always an inspiration.

To my wife, Catherine Zoengpuii and son, Lalmalsawma Varte - Your love and presence are my heart and strength that keeps me going for the goal.

To all my brothers, Mark Lalthanliana, Lalrinliana and Lalramliana – You are the arrows in the quiver (Psalm 127: 4&5), the ones who made the family strong.

To all the respondents of the study - For provided inputs of information that is the basis of the thesis.

To my friends in the State Institute of Rural Development, Mizoram and District Rural Development Agencies – Your uncountable help cannot go unmentioned.
To the personnel of taxation department in different districts of Mizoram –
Thank you all for helping me in administering the questionnaires.

To my colleagues in the Department of Commerce, Mizoram University –
Thank you all for your support so crucial especially near to the completion of my work.

To the Mizoram University – My thanks for giving me the opportunity to pursue research work leading to Ph.D degree.

To my mother, Lalthangliani, who had answered the higher calling – This thesis is dedicated to you.
