It is my profound duty to acknowledge the help and guidance that I have received throughout the preparation of this thesis on ‘Distribution and Adaptation of the Mizos in North East India’. Without which the thesis would have been incomplete in all aspects. It is with the support, guidance and help of the following eminent persons made the thesis complete in all respects.

I sincerely thank Prof. P. Rinawma a guide, a supervisor and an inspiration for the success of the thesis in complete form. Without his patient and inconsistent guidance, this would have been an impossible task to complete. His constant guidance, corrections and support enabled me to complete my studies.

I express my heartfelt thanks to Dr. Rintluanga Pachuau, Associate Professor of the Department for his able guidance and corrections in the Cartographic Techniques and his constant support throughout the course of my studies. I also express my sincere thanks to Prof. G.
