Acknowledgements

With profound feelings of gratitude I acknowledge the contribution of all those who helped me in the course of this study and its completion. I am grateful to:

Prof. Jaiwanti Dimri, department of English, Himachal Pradesh University Shimla, under whose guidance and supervision I undertook and completed this project. Her unstinting help and moral support inspired me and sustained my spirits through this venture.

The authors, Indira Goswami, Dalip Kaur Tiwana and Maitreyi Pushpa who readily spared their valuable time and provided the related material for this study.

Prof. Gurdial Singh, the Jnanpith awardee Punjabi novelist, whose life and work inspired my interest in the rural reality.

Prof. H.S. Gill, Prof. Prem Singh and Dr. Kumkum Yadav (Fellows, IIAS), Prof. Rana Nayar (Punjab University) and Prof. Chaman Lal (Punjabi University) for their encouragement and support.

Giri Raj Kishore and Rajendra Yadav, the eminent writers for offering their occasional insights into this study.

The Chairperson, Prof. V.P. Sharma and other Faculty members of Department of English for their co-operation and support.
The Department of Education, Himachal Pradesh which sanctioned Study Leave for this project.

Mrs. Bhagwati Bali, Principal, Government College, Arki, and my colleagues who might have been put to inconvenience due to my divided priorities.

The library staff of Himachal Pradesh University, Shimla I.I.A.S. Shimla, H. P. University Centre for Evening Studies, Sahitya Akademi Delhi, Punjabi University Patiala and Punjab University Chandigarh for their help and co-operation.

Sanjay Sindhu Rajni Walia and Meenu who assisted me in various ways during the course of this study.

My parents, my husband, my daughters- Kamayani and Kanupriya- my students and friends who are my “Family’ and my solid support.

Mr. Rajinder Thakur and Rajkumar for typing this thesis.

Rekha Malhotra