ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It gives me great pleasure to place on record my deep sense of gratitude and indebtedness to Dr. G. Prasad, M.Com., B.L., Ph.D., Reader, Department of Commerce & Business Administration, Nagarjuna University, who introduced me to the field of University Management. The past four years that I have been associated with him have gone a long way in shaping up my attitudes on academic as well as non-academic issues. His scholarly guidance, encouragement, benevolent nature and forbearance with me have been the prime factors responsible for the successful completion of this work.

I am grateful to Prof. D. Dakshina Murthy, M.Com., Ph.D. (New York), Dean and Head, Department of Commerce & Business Administration, Nagarjuna University for his constant inspiration, guidance and encouragement. I cannot forget the guidance and help that I received from Dr. K.V. Rao, Reader, Department of Commerce & Business Administration, Nagarjuna University. I profusely thank them both for their kindness towards me.

Now it is my humble duty to express my deep gratitude to Prof. G.J.V. Jagannadha Raju, Vice-Chancellor of Nagarjuna University, Dr. K.R.R. Mohan Rao, former Vice-Chancellor of Nagarjuna University, Prof. K. Rama Krishna Rao, former Vice-Chancellor of Andhra University and Special Advisor, Government of Andhra Pradesh, and Prof. Moonis Raza, Vice-Chancellor of University of Delhi, for helping me in carrying out this work.

I wish to place on record the help I received from the authorities of Nagarjuna University, Andhra University and Delhi University for their co-operation and help from time to time. In this connection, I specially thank Prof. B. Prasada Rao, Dean, Academic Affairs, Andhra University; Dr. S.V. Krishna Rao, Registrar, Nagarjuna University; Dr. M. Gopala Krishna
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It gives me great pleasure to place on record my deep sense of gratitude and indebtedness to Dr. G. Prasad, M.Com., B.L., Ph.D., Reader, Department of Commerce & Business Administration, Nagarjuna University, who introduced me to the field of University Management. The past four years that I have been associated with him have gone a long way in shaping up my attitudes on academic as well as non-academic issues. His scholarly guidance, encouragement, benevolent nature and forbearance with me have been the prime factors responsible for the successful completion of this work.

I am grateful to Prof. D. Dakshina Murthy, M.Com., Ph.D. (New York), Dean and Head, Department of Commerce & Business Administration, Nagarjuna University for his constant inspiration, guidance and encouragement. I cannot forget the guidance and help that I received from Dr. K.V. Rao, Reader, Department of Commerce & Business Administration, Nagarjuna University. I profusely thank them both for their kindness towards me.

Now it is my humble duty to express my deep gratitude to Prof. G.J.V. Jagannadha Raju, Vice-Chancellor of Nagarjuna University; Dr. K.R.R. Mohan Rao, former Vice-Chancellor of Nagarjuna University; Prof. K. Rama Krishna Rao, former Vice-Chancellor of Andhra University and Special Adviser, Government of Andhra Pradesh, and Prof. Moonis Raza, Vice-Chancellor of University of Delhi, for helping me in carrying out this work.

I wish to place on record the help I received from the authorities of Nagarjuna University, Andhra University, and Delhi University for their cooperation and help from time to time. In this connection, I specially thank Prof. B. Prasada Rao, Dean, Academic Affairs, Andhra University; Prof. M. Gangadhara Rao, Dean, Faculty of Commerce, Andhra University; Dr. S.V. Krishna Rao, Registrar, Nagarjuna University; Dr. M. Gopala Krishnawork. I remain grateful to the library staff of Nagarjuna University, ASCI, M.S. University of Baroda, NIEPA, and IIM, Ahmedabad for their giving me access to various books and journals.

My fervent indebtedness is due to Sri Vedantam Ramachandra Rao, an eminent scholar and administrator in the field of educational administration, for going through the manuscript and making critical comments. My sincere thanks are due to Miss B. Kameswari and Mrs. P. Sarada for their secretarial assistance.

I humbly express my respectful gratitude to my beloved parents, Sri Y. Sankararao and Mrs Y. Sujatha Devi, who are my sole source of inspiration and without whose help carrying out this study would have become an impossible task. Last but not least, my heart-felt thanks are also due to my other family members for their cooperation and whole-hearted help for completing this study successfully.

Department of Commerce &
Business Administration,
Nagarjuna University,
NAGARJUNANAGAR - 522 510

Y.S. KIRANMAYI