“If I have seen a little further, it is by standing on the shoulders of giants,” said Sir Isaac Newton, and this phrase is now the byword for researchers (and the tagline of Google Scholar!). What is not mentioned in this phrase is the fact that many hands actually hoist the researcher on the shoulders of giants. I wish to acknowledge, with gratitude the helping hands that pushed, lifted or steadied me in my research journey. Without them, I could neither have stood on the shoulder of giants nor seen further.

The initial push to research, I owe to our former Vice Chancellor Prof. Anil V. Gokak, who urged me to do research concerning women. To our current Vice Chancellor, Prof. J. Shashidhara Prasad, the Registrar, Dr. Naren Ramji and the Controller of Examinations, Mr. G. S. Srirangarajan, I am grateful for the support and encouragement they provided.

Prof. R. Kumar Bhaskar, my research supervisor, has not only guided me through the entire research journey, but actually evened out the path for me. His openness, his support, and his understanding helped me weather many a research blues. While I did benefit from his superior understanding of social research and meticulous outline of work at each stage, what I learnt from his example is the openness of attitude towards different opinions and perspectives of knowledge.

I am indebted to Prof. John Adams, Prof. Soumya Siva Kumar, Prof. Peter Pruzan, and Mr. Mandip Sandhu who showed keen interest and helped me to perfect my work. Their support helped me to improve the rigour and depth of this work. I also thank Prof. A. Sudhir Bhaskar, Prof. A. Anantharaman, Dr. Shashank Shah and Dr. Deepak Anand for sharing their contacts with me.

I thank the former Director of the Anantapur Campus, Hon. Prof. Dwaraka Rani Rao, the present Director, Prof. Madhu Kapani and the members of the Departments of Commerce and Management - Hon. Prof. N. Niranjana (former Head of the Department), Dr. Ch. Radhakumari (present Head of the Department), Dr. T. R. Rajeswari, Mrs. Jayapradha, Ms. Kirti Kiran and Ms. Akanksha for having facilitated me with necessary work adjustments when I needed more time to do my research work.

My special thanks to the willing support given by staff members of the Anantapur and Prasanthi Nilayam library, and computer labs. I also gained from many research scholars, with whom I had fruitful discussions.

To my quarter-mate and friend Dr. N. Srividya, I owe thanks for many hours of discussion on the nuances of research methods and for the many plates of nutritious food she so lovingly supplied when I was lost in my work. Dr. S. Subramanian was a supportive help through the research journey. His help while handling SPSS software was invaluable. A mere phone call to him would solve all the hiccups in computing. I must thank Dr. Sivaramakrishnan for not only proof reading my work but also for the interesting discussions we had on the subject of gender differences.

I also thank Prof. Rajeshwari C. Patel and Dr. P. L. Rani who took time out of their busy schedule to edit the language part of my writing.

I am also obliged to Prof. Ravi Kumar and Prof. Prabhakar Raya who provided many valuable suggestions on the research synopsis, which I have incorporated in my thesis.

A large number of people helped me secure contacts, hosted me in various cities and introduced me to many women executives. I would like to thank Mr. Vijay Bhaskar, Mr. Shyam Mohan, Mr. Ramkumar, Mr. Malhotra, Mr. C. N. Ram, Mr. Sameer Bhatia and Mrs. Bhatia, Mr. Vivek Gaur and Mrs. Rashmi Gaur, Mr. N. T. Arunkumar, Mr. M. S. Sambamurthy, Mr A. S. Sastri, Mr. Mahesh Vellanki and many others.

To my uncles and aunts (Pandu mama and Minnie aunty, Rami mama, Radha mama, Somu mama, Shekhar mama and Sagar mama), my cousins Deepika, Vasanta and Ravi, and my other relatives, who extended their contacts and helped me in many ways, I owe my gratitude.

I thank my Dad for helping me in every stage of the research. He painstakingly collected newspaper articles on gender, photocopied relevant articles from journals, rang up his contacts in each city and gave me regular doses of wisdom and practical reality. I thank my Mom for creating the space to work, worrying about my health and supporting me all through the research. I also thank my sister Uma for accompanying me on my trips of data collection and giving me the confidence to do such a study. To Deepa, I owe not only the shape and format of my thesis but also for having borne the edge of my temper like a sister. The patience, with which she worked on the Latex software, despite her pressing engagements, is a debt I cannot redeem. I also owe a lot to my brother Prashant Sai, who not only helped me to make the web based questionnaires but also tutored me in using different types of software.

Last but not the least, I am grateful to all the women executives who shared their experiences and allowed me to gain from them an understanding, which is not merely the substance of my research, but also a part of my growth as a person.

Having hoisted myself on the shoulders of giants, what I saw was a panoramic view of endless peaks to be climbed. The sight has humbled me and revealed a truth, which any serious pursuit of knowledge reveals, - the infinity of knowledge and the insignificance of human understanding....
