ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

It is a wonderful beauty of the Creator where the knowledge, wisdom and generosity are institutionalized under the leadership of philanthropic crusaders who often forget the distinction between day and night in their incessant industry. Acharya Nagarjuna University is one such a confluence of ideals, industry and inputs, and the Torch-bearer of this glorious trinity is the humane personality of matured erudition and efficiency - Prof. Y.R. Haragopal Reddy, a renowned professor of law, an able administrator, with unending readership and he is the Vice-Chancellor of Acharya Nagarjuna University. Besides all these virtues, he inspires young generation to conduct research on human issues and problems under the umbrella of law. I am indebted to his graceful inspiration for advising and directing me to undertake this task of preparing doctoral thesis. It is my fortune to be a research scholar of this esteemed University.

Next I should mention the name of my Research Guide Prof. Y.P.Ramasubbaiah, Professor of Law in the P.G.Department of Law of Acharya Nagarjuna University, who has been showering his parental blessings and fraternal guidance in dealing with this very interesting and intriguing task of working on "Right to Mercy Killing". Prof. Y.P.Ramasubbaiah is an astounding scholar, most revered teacher, and hailed to be an embodiment of selfless service and spiritual academician. He has been very kind enough to advise and guide me through out my working on this topic and had there not been his immaculate guidance and supervision, I would not have completed this work within the specified period. I have no words to express my gratitude for his indescribable help and guidance in making out this research work; I pay my reverential gratitude to my professor-guide Prof. Y.P.Ramasubbaiah.
It will be most inconvenient for me to give out a long list of my well-wishers and benefactors who contributed to the early completion of this research work, but I can not remain without mentioning the services of all those noble hearts who encouraged me to take up the topic of euthanasia. I specially thank Prof. L. Jayasree, Head - P.G.Dept of Law, Acharya Nagarjuna University and also Prof. Brahmanandam, Principal, University College, A.N.U. and also Dr. Anni John, Principal, A.C. College of Law, Guntur for their cooperation and encouragement.
