

Acknowledgements

I express my deep and sincere gratitude to my guide and mentor Dr. I.P. Massey, Professor and Chairman, Department of Laws and Dean, Faculty of Law, H.P. University, Summer Hill, Shimla-5 for his sempiternal guidance and sempervirent supervision without which the completion of the present thesis would not have been possible. It was his psychological insight and visionary outlook that imbued me with an aggrandising approach and spirit. In fact, his rich judicial and academic experience imparted a pragmatic touch to this project. Again, it was his scholarly acumen which dispelled some of the dichotomies and doubts gripping my mind while analysing the given topic.

I express my deep thanks to the members of my family, especially father, who always encouraged me to go in for academic excellence in life. My revered father generously rendered financial support and advised to work hard in life. To him hard work, honesty, dedication, sacrifice and commitment to the cause and purpose all are the stepping stones to achieve success in life. His constant encouragement, love and affection always helped me tremendously and puissantly in the completion of this project. I am, also thankful to my younger brothers Pardhaman, Sarvadaman and cousin Virender Khurana, who kept me free from domestic compulsions while doing my research.

III

I owe my great gratitude to my colleague Dr. Baldev Singh, Senior Research Fellow in the Department of Laws in H.P. University, who inspite of his busy schedule in research and taking classes in the department took a keen and pervasive interest in the niceties and subtleties of this project.

I would be failing in my duty if I do not express my sincere thanks to Sh. P.D. Desai, former Chief Justice of H.P. High Court and Mr. P.M. Bakshi, Director, Indian Law Institute, New Delhi, who gave me their valuable time to discuss this research proposition and made me acquainted with many latest reports and books. They really gave some important suggestions as to how one should go ahead with one's research design.

I am deeply indebted to many of my friends, colleagues, teachers, judges and lawyers residing in Shimla and other nooks and corners of the Pradesh without whose hobnobbing and interaction the present thesis would not have reached the pinnacle of its completion.

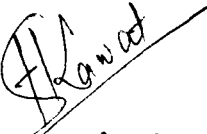

I am also thankful to Mr. S.K. Sharma, Librarian, Department of Laws, H.P. University and its staff Mr. Dinesh and Mr Kundan for their timely help and encouragement.

Last but not the least, my deepest thanks are due to the library staff of H.P. Vidhan Sabha, Shimla, H.P. High Court, Shimla, Indian Law Institute, New Delhi for their untiring efforts which they made in the form of furnishing books, journals and other required material. In fact, whenever, I felt the necessity of these available books in their respective libraries, they rendered a sincere help in tracing out the required material.

Finally, I am also thankful to Mr. P.C. Dixit for typing out this thesis with accuracy and promptitude at such a short notice despite many technical problems of the printer.

Dated: 30.12.1994

(Harinder Singh Rawat)