Acknowlegements

The journey towards the successful completion of this thesis has been extremely challenging. Without the unconditional support and encouragement of people who had faith in me, to pursue this endeavour to its end would have been impossible.

I would like to express my deepest gratitude to my revered supervisor, Dr. Neelima Kanwar for her encouragement, meticulous guidance, critical insights and constructive comments throughout the course of this work. Her invaluable counsel and comparative knowledge of Native Canadian and Aboriginal Australian literature encouraged me to explore an area initially unknown to me. I am profoundly thankful to her for enriching my awareness in this area and providing an inspiring, thought provoking environment along with a long distance supervision which has benefitted me immensely. I would also like to thank her entire family for the warmth and parental hospitality extended to me at all times.

I am highly indebted to my mother Smt. Durga Khatri for her emotional and financial support. I am thankful to her for showing unwavering faith in my potential to realize my dream especially when I started questioning and doubting my capabilities. She deserves a special note of thanks for providing me with the environment to concentrate on my thesis by lovingly and selflessly taking care of my daughter all these years. Though he is no more, I would like to acknowledge the blessings and encouragement of my father Sh. R. S Khatri which I sense even in his absence.

I would like to express my sincere appreciation and gratitude to my mother-in-law Smt. Shakuntala Shandil for her blessings, motivational support and especially her inspiring attitude throughout the preparation of this thesis. I thank her for her wholehearted co-operation and espousal.

I am grateful to my husband Sh. Neeraj Kumar for not only remaining tolerant, supportive but also patiently enduring this time consuming project to its completion. I am thankful to him for his accommodating nature whenever my role as a wife took a backseat. I will certainly remember the moments when we mutually struggled to bring this endeavour to an end. I truly appreciate the way in which he baby sat for our daughter so that I could visit the library of Australian Institute of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Studies, and search for secondary materials for my thesis.

I am fortunate to have the support of my loving four year old daughter, Maitreyi. She has given me the space to focus on my thesis by spending days without me. I deeply regret not being with her at all times. I love my sweet angel for bearing my absence with such fortitude at this tender age and never complaining.

A sincere note of thanks to Rajeev Thakur for his help and warm encouragements expressed through his thoughtful deeds.

I owe my gratitude to the library of Australian Institute of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Studies, Canberra, Australia for allowing me to make use of their photo copying facility and providing an access to their well maintained and documented collection of books, journals and reviews. I am grateful to Rita and other staff members of the library all of whom regrettably, I cannot acknowledge by names.

I am also thankful to the library of Centre for Australian and New Zealand Studies and library of Centre for Canadian Studies, Himachal Pradesh University, Shimla for providing me with the required material for the completion of my work.

My sincere thanks to the Principal of Government College of Teacher Education, Dharamshala and my colleagues for their constant support and good wishes.

Finally, I am thankful to M/s Sood Printers and Binders, Summerhill, for printing and binding this thesis on time.
