ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would like to express my sincere and heartfelt gratitude to Dr. Mukesh Dhunna, Reader, Institute of Management Studies and Research, Maharshi Dayanand University, Rohtak, my advisor in this research project. It is due to his continued interest, valuable guidance, able support and advice all along during the conception, research and writing of this dissertation and for motivation and encouragement he has provided me.

I am extremely grateful to Sh. Shankar Gupta, Retired Deputy Director (Systems) in the office of Director (Systems), Central Board of Direct Taxes, New Delhi, who has been kind enough to help me in writing the History of Computerisation in Income-tax Department and gave other valuable suggestions during the course of completion of this project report. I would also express my deep appreciation to Mr. P.C. Chhotarai, member of Indian Revenue Service, Director in the Central Board of Direct Taxes, for providing me enough material about the experience of computerisation of Income-Tax in other developed countries.

I am highly thankful to respondents, who have spared enough time to go through the lengthy questionnaire and provided other valuable information and suggestions. I am thankful to many other officers of the Income-tax Department who have not only spared enough time for me to discuss the different issues and have provided me required material for this research aspects but also for whose help it would not have been possible to complete this work. I am unable to mention names of all of them. I am also thankful to Mr.
Narayan Dass, Section Officer in the Printing Press of Ministry of Finance, Government of India, New Delhi, who helped me a lot in collection of the data.

In the last, I feel irresistible to mention the name of my wife, Ms. Raj Gaba, who encouraged me a lot during the completion of this research project and took great pains to type the entire material, ably and quickly. I am highly obliged to her.
