Acknowledgments

I place on record my deep gratitude to Dr. Sam Sananda Raj, my guide and Professor of Psychology, University of Kerala. His help and contribution in enlightening my mindscape has been immense. Had it not been for his able and excellent guidance, this research project would not have materialised. I am greatly indebted to Prof. Sam Sananda Raj for the enormous support he had extended to carry out this thesis work to its completion.

The help I obtained from Mr. P. Jayaraman, my student-turned-friend, a Software Engineer stationed at London, was great. He had furnished me a lot of reference material on Graham Greene. The photograph of Greene, appearing as the frontispiece of this dissertation was also sent to me by him. I acknowledge my profound indebtedness to him.

My colleague, Dr. Thomas Kuruvilla, whose doctoral thesis was on Graham Greene, was a source of constant encouragement and support. The pains he had taken to read through the manuscript, and to polish the pebbles appearing therein, had been immense. My deep gratitude to him.

Dr. Sajeev Samuel Rose, Department of English, Government College for Women, Trivandrum had read through the thesis and his valuable remarks have helped me to modulate my views in a better way. I am thankful to him.

The comments and critical views of my colleagues, Dr. Nagoor Meera, Head of the Department of English, University College, Trivandrum, Mr. V. Radhakrishnan Nair, Mr. R. S. Krishnanand,
Mr. K. G. Sreekumaran Nayar and Mrs. K. Ambika Devi have helped me a great deal in structuring the plan and progress of the thesis. My gratitude to them all.

Though not here any more, my colleague and intimate friend, late Mr. B. P. Jayachandran had been a source of comfort and consolation during the arduous years of work of this research project. I place on record my profound gratitude to him.

The two successive Principals of Government Sanskrit College, Trivandrum, where I worked for a long time, - Prof. Viswanthan Achari and Prof. P. Madhavan Nayar, who have since retired - and Prof. B. Satheendran, Head, Department of Nyaya, have helped me a great deal in perusing Sanskrit texts for the purpose of my study. Debts of gratitude are due to them.

Dr. N. Gopala Panicker who authored the Kairali Vyakhyanam of the famous Sanskrit text, 'Yoga Vasishtam' has permitted and approved the translation of a sloka from that text which is incorporated in this dissertation. I place on record my gratefulness to him.

Among my kin, I am indebted to my sister-in-law, Dr. Valsa Eapen, Associate Professor, Child Psychiatry, Faculty of Medicine and Health Sciences, United Arab Emirates University for her erudite advice; my brother, Mr. Abraham Mathew who had obtained me a copy of the second volume of Norman Sherry's exemplary biography of Graham Greene; Prof. Oommen Mathew, Department of English, Christ College, Bangalore, my eldest brother, for his wise counsel.

The legacy left me by my late grandfather – an aptitude to taste and chew good books, and the inheritance handed down to me by my father, Mr. V. O. Mathew, – a treasury of invaluable books, have enabled me to pursue this study with great devotion. Had it not been for all these people, this dissertation would not have been possible. I acknowledge my profound gratitude to them.

I gratefully remember my teachers for the intellectual training they have offered, and my colleagues, friends, and students for the valuable insights they have tendered me from time to time.

I am grateful to the Department of Collegiate Education, Government of Kerala, for granting me permission to undertake this research work, and to the Librarians and Staff of the Department of Psychology, University of Kerala, The British Library, and the American Studies Research Centre and the Central Institute of English and Foreign Languages, Hyderabad.

Gross ingratitude will be my due, if I do not acknowledge my indebtedness to Mrs. Aleyamma Jacob, the prop and pillar of Jacob's Computer Centre, Ulloor, and her assistant Miss. Sherin Xavier. Their painstaking effort and meticulous care, are certainly laudable.

A congenial atmosphere at home is an essential pre-requisite for the completion of a work of this kind. I thank my wife Maya for it. My lovable sons Mathew and John have in their own way reminded me of my task of completing the thesis. My gratitude to them for having tolerated the inconvenience for long.
