ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This brief note is to acknowledge the help I received from the individuals and institutions during the course of my research work.

First of all, I am highly grateful to my teacher and supervisor Dr. A. Raghurama, Professor of Commerce, Mangalore University. This study would never have materialized but for his caring approach and expert guidance. With equally sincere feelings, I owe a great sense of gratitude to Dr. Krishna Kothai, Director, Centre for Rural Studies, MAHE, Manipal. His timely assistance and encouragement throughout this study is enormous. Indeed, I am short of words to list the vast obligations that I owe to him. Dr Rajaram Tholpady, Reader in Political Science, Mangalore University has always shown a keen interest in my research work, and was of great assistance while finalizing my thesis. I earnestly thank him.

My sincere thanks are due to my teachers Dr Yashavantha Dongre, Professor of Commerce, University of Mysore and Prof. P. S.
Yadapadithaya, Chairman, department of Studies in Commerce, Mangalore University. Their contribution has been immense in me taking up this research work and completing it successfully. Dr M. A. Udayakumar was of great help in providing me with a lot of literature pertaining to the subject of this thesis. I deeply appreciate his kind gesture. The facilitators, animators, and the Self Help Group members, whom I met during my field study, were extremely cooperative and helped me intensively to complete my field study. I sincerely thank them.

Finally, all my family members always stood by me and encouraged to carry out my research with out any hassles. I remember them here with lot of warmth and love.
