

List of Tables		Page no.
Table 1.1	Buttle' s Three Major Perspectives on CRM	44
Table 2.1	Range of the Study	67
Table 2.2	list of sampled Banks included in the study	67
Table 2.3	Sample responses for content validity	75
Table 2.4	Content analysis relevant to significance of CRM	76
Table 2.5	Content analysis related to the CRM strategies of banks	76 - 79
Table 3.1	Comparison between the public, private and foreign banks on significance of CRM in banking industry: executive view point	94 - 95
Table 3.2	Comparison between the Public, Private and Foreign banks on Significance of CRM in Banking Industry: Customer's View Point	97
Table 3.3	Mean score table of the response of the executives and customers in relation to significance of CRM	99
Table 3.4	Total Variance and eigen value	100
Table 3.5	Factor Loadings of the variables regarding Significance of CRM	101
Table 3.6	t – ratio of the response of executives and customers of public sector banks on factors of significance of CRM	103
Table 3.7	t– ratio of the response of executives and customers of private sector banks on factors of significance of CRM	104
Table 3.8	t – ratio of the response of executives and customers of foreign sector banks on factors of significance of CRM	105
Table 3.9	Summary of variance between public, private and foreign sector banks in relation to the significance of CRM by using ANOVA (executive viewpoint)	105 - 106
Table 3.10	Summary of variance between public, private and foreign sector banks in relation to the significance of CRM by using ANOVA (Customer viewpoint)	106
Table 3.11	Factors Status	107
Table 4.1	The distribution of the respondents' age	108
Table 4.2	The distribution of the respondents' gender	109
Table 4.3	The distribution of the respondents' educational level.	110
Table 4.4	The distribution of the respondents' occupation	111
Table 4.5	The distribution of the respondents' association period with the bank	111
Table 4.6	Comparative analysis of prevalent CRM strategies of sampled banks	113 - 115
Table 4.7	Total variance explained	116
Table 4.8	Factor loadings of the variables for customer relationship management strategies	116 - 118
Table 4.9	Percentage analysis of the executives and customers of banks on Customized Product and Services	121 - 122
Table 4.10	Percentage analysis of the executives and customers of banks on Customer Focus	126 - 127
Table 4.11	Percentage analysis of the executives and customers of banks on CRM Organisation	131 - 132

Table 4.12	Percentage analysis of the executives and customers of banks on Customer Knowledge Management	136 - 137
Table 4.13	Percentage analysis of the executives and customers of banks on Communication Management	141
Table 4.14	Percentage analysis of the executives and customers of banks on Technology	145 - 146
Table 4.15	Percentage analysis of the executives and customers of banks on CRM tools and facilities	150
Table 4.16	Overall mean values and standard deviation of factors of CRM strategies of Indian Banks.	153
Table 4.17	t – ratio of the response of executives and customers of public sector banks on factors of CRM strategies	154
Table 4.18	t – ratio of the response of executives and customers of private sector banks on factors of CRM strategies	155
Table 4.19	t – ratio of the response of executives and customers of foreign sector banks on factors of CRM strategies	156
Table 4.20	summary of variance between public, private and foreign sector banks in relation to the CRM strategies by using ANOVA (executive’s view point)	157
Table 4.21	Summary of variance between public, private and foreign sector banks in relation to the CRM strategies by using ANOVA (customer’s view point)	158 - 159
Table 5.1	Factors and variables of Significance of CRM	163