REFERENCES

[56] Rajaram, M, Determination of the latitude of Sq focus and its relation to the electrojet variations, J. Atmospheric and Terrestrial Physics, 45 (1983), 573-578.

[57] Rangarajan, G.K., 'Best' estimates of the amplitude of diurnal and semidiurnal components of Sq (H) and their annual variations, Indian J. Radio and Space Physics, 14 (1975), 46-49.

Srivastava, N, How good is the prediction of space weather based on solar and interplanetary properties? Proceedings of the ILWS workshop, Goa, India, 2006.

Thakur, N.K and Alex, S., On the movement of northern Sq focus and the semiannual variations at the equatorial stations, Rivista Italiana di Geofisica, EScienze Affini, 4 (1977), 128-130.

Yacob, A and Rangarajan, G.K, Secular trend near the focus of maximum horizontal intensity, Pure and Applied Geophysics, 111 (1973), 2286-2290.

Yacob, A, Latitudinal profile in India of Sq (H) range and of its prominent periodicities, Pageoph, 113 (1975), 601-609.

[90] Zhang, W and King, I., A study of relationship between support vector machine and Gabriel graph, Department of Computer Science and Engineering, Hong Kong, 6 (2002), 7803-7808.