ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am greatly indebted to Professor K.A. Jayaseelan, my supervisor, who taught me how to do syntax. Whenever he found me meddling with "crazy" facts of the language, he showed me how to look into the nature of things in the wonderland of linguistics and where to look for solutions to those mysterious problems that would be appearing suddenly from nowhere. Surely, I must have tested his patience a number of times with several worthless drafts of my dissertation. Without his guidance and love, I wonder, if at all I would have completed my work. Looking back, I realize how lucky I had been to get him as my mentor.

I am grateful to Professor Probal Das Gupta, with whom I had a few fruitful discussions in the early stages of my work; he had shown a keen interest in the progress of my work. Also, I am grateful to Professor K. P. Mohanan who found time to listen to my story about coordination. And my sincere thanks to Dr. P. Madhavan who helped me with the finishing touches of the thesis.

Acknowledgements are due:

to Professor B. V. L. Narayana Row, Professor K. V. Tirumalesh, Professor V. Sasikumar, Professor P. T. George, Professor R. Amritavalli, and Mr. G. R. Pillai for their concern for my health and for their good wishes, to my colleagues Sasankan, Raveendran, Asgar, Gita, Suja and Sujatha who had helped me in various ways during the course of my project, to Naveen for the many trips he had undertaken to various places at my bidding, to Ms. Chandrika for the loving care and company she had given me during my stay at Hyderabad, and for the innumerable things she had done for me, to Mr. Sankara Rao who did an excellent job of typing this thesis, and to Mr. Dominic who had helped me with proof reading.

Back at home, I have my brothers Janachandran and Sukhadan, sisters Sunanda, Indira, and Shobhana, brothers-in-law Sukumaran, Velayudhan and Lakshmanan and my dear parents (Sri Narayanan and Smt. Susheela) who all were worrying about my illness and were attending to my random needs from time to time. They instilled confidence in me at a point when I had almost thought of abandoning my academic pursuits.

I owe my thanks to all those kind souls who had given me strength and courage to tide over certain unpleasant experiences that I had a few years ago (when I was in the thick of my work) which had made me mentally a wreck, then. But for them I would never have come out of the shock and trauma that I was in.

Thanks to my wife Indira who had to bear the whole brunt of house-hold affairs during my stay at Hyderabad. Her faith and love saved me from all kinds of emotional turbulences.

And finally, thanks to my children Arun, Athul and Akhil who have waited so long for me to join their company and to whom I had denied paternal attention in the pretext of my studies.

- K.N. Anandan