ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I owe special thanks to Professor Sabyasachi Bhattacharya, under whose supervision I worked. He went through drafts of my thesis at various protracted stages of its completion, suggesting modifications, corrections and often new insights into problems; at the same time allowing me to develop my own ideas. I need to thank Dipash Chakravorty, Simon Commandor, Professor Satish Saberwal and Sujata Patel, all of whom read and commented on drafts of certain chapters; and Sumit Guha, who made comments on, and edited, almost all the chapters. I gained a lot from casual conversation and discussions with Dilip, Radha, Shahid, Lajpat and Rana. When I started off research, late P.C. Joshi and late K. Damodaran gave me encouragement and drew my notice to some important existing material. There are many in Kanpur and Lucknow whose help I need to acknowledge: my parents, especially my father who helped me in getting access to the Criminal Investigation Department in Lucknow, friends whom I stayed with in Kanpur and Varanasi, workers and others I interviewed (especially Raghubir and late Shri Arjun Arora who were generous with their time); in particular, I must mention Ganesh, Chaturvedi and Neelan with whom I had long chats on the present state of the workers’ movement in Kanpur, and who helped me get in touch with various workers in Kanpur.
The staff at various offices and libraries in Delhi, Kanpur and Varanasi were very cooperative, especially at the Criminal Investigation Department (Lucknow), the Nagri Pracharini Sabha (Varanasi), Labour Commissioner's Office (Kanpur), and Dr Panigrahi, at the Nehru Memorial Library, who made a special effort to help speed up the microfilming of the Pioneer files. It is difficult to express all that I owe to Neeladri, who spent long hours discussing various questions, helped in editing and proof-reading, drew the maps and sketches; in addition he bore with my frayed nerves and helped me keep my cool while I was at it, at the cost of holding up his own work. And finally a word of thanks for Saber Singh who met my urgent typing demands whenever I made them.

The responsibility for any errors is mine.
