ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I express my sincere thanks to Dr. Shobha Goyle, Associate Professor, School of Life Sciences, for suggesting the problem, guidance and sparing her valuable time to go through the manuscript very carefully.

I am grateful to Prof. Asis Datta, Dean, School of Life Sciences and Prof. P.C. Kesvan, former Dean, School of Life Sciences, for providing me the facilities necessary to pursue this investigation.

I owe my gratitude to Dr. C.R. Balakrishnan, National Dairy Research Institute, Karnal for teaching me the FPG technique utilised in this investigation.

I am grateful to Dr. M.C. Maheswari, Head, Department of Neurology, All India Institute of Medical Sciences for providing the epileptic patients. Thanks are due to Dr. H.D. Goyle, consulting surgeon, for many valuable discussions were carried out with him during the course of this investigation.

I feel prickly conscience to remain with a word of gratitude for the pivotal role played by Dr. Kailash C. Upadhyaya, Associate Professor, School of Life Sciences, who had spared no pains in bringing out the thesis in the present form with his everwilling and expert advice.

I wish to express my warmest thanks to Shri Deo Singhjee, one of my old teachers, for giving extremely valuable advices at times when I needed them the most.

Words will not be enough to express my gratefulness to Dr. Neeta Kapai my senior lab colleague who always remained available for her advices at critical junctures and had become the source of solution and encouragement during the days of perturbance and despondance.

I express my heartfelt thanks to Ujjawal, Prashant and Mrs. Aradhana, for their help during the experimental phase of my work.
