

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

When I began working on this thesis a little more than three years ago, I had little idea where I would go, how I would get there, and what I would find. After long and arduous efforts, this once seemingly insurmountable task is now complete. While I found the entire process to be intellectually stimulating and tremendously rewarding, there were many trials and tribulations along the way.

I would first like to express my sincere gratitude to Dr Shrikant Paranjpe of the Department of Defence and Strategic Studies, University of Pune, who made my participation in this Doctoral program a reality. He has been my mentor and guide all through these trying times, and by his vast experience and in depth understanding, honed my thoughts towards writing this document. The knowledge and guidance provided by him, and the second reader, Maj Gen Arjun Menon, has had a profound and direct impact on the foundation of my thesis, and its ultimate success.

I extend my gratitude to the learned Faculty and experienced Staff at the Department of Defence and Strategic Studies, University of Pune, for their support, secretarial assistance and guidance.

I would also like to thank my wife for her constant encouragement that inspired and urged me not to give up and complete my thesis in time. Without her perseverance and rock solid support and that of my parents and children, this project would not have been possible.
