ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am indebted to Dr. Shridhar B. Gokhale, Reader at the Department of English, University of Poona who is the supervisor of this research. His expertise and analytical insights have been very valuable in the completion of this work.

I am grateful to Professor Sudhakar Pandey for his cooperation particularly while I worked on this project as a teacher fellow from 1988 to 1989. I must thank the authorities of Fergusson College for facilitating my leave from 1988 to 1989.

I thank Jaykar library, University of Poona, Jerbai Wadia Library, Fergusson College, Dhvanyaloka, Mysore, School for Oriental and African Studies, London, Commonwealth Institute, High-Street Kensington and The British Museum for making the source material and books available. I must specially mention my gratitude to Dr. Kenneth Ramchand who sent me material related to Brathwaite from the West-Indies.

I thank Prof. K.R. Shirwadkar who supervised my work in its initial stages.

My family, friends and particularly my husband Sitaram have not only given me moral support but have helped me in every possible way. Can words express my gratitude adequately?

I cannot forget to thank Shirish Pathak and his friends for wordprocessing the typescript and Mr. Sham Shinde for binding it so well within such a short time.
