BIBLIOGRAPHY
PRIMARY SOURCES

- “Turkmenistan signs arms for gas deals with Russia” 27 December 1994 (Ashkhabad), collected from Summary of World Broadcasts, BBC (London), Su / 21884 / 5, 29 December.

- “Russia and Turkmenistan strike visa deal” 17th June, collected from Summary of World Broadcasts, BBC (London), Su/3591 G /3, 20 July 1999.

\textbf{SECONDARY SOURCES}

\textbf{Books}

• Chufrin Gennady (ed.), Russia and Asia: The Emerging Security Agenda, Oxford University Press, UK.

• Dawisha, Karen and Bruce Parrott, (ed.), Conflict, Cleavage and Change in Central Asia and the Caucasus (Cambridge: Cambridge University, 1997).

• Hisao Komastu (2002), A Modern History of Central Asia, University of Tokyo Press, Tokyo.

• Johnson, Lena (1998), Russia and Central Asia: A New Web of Relations, The Royal Institute of International Affairs, Chameleon Press, UK.

• Olcott, Martha Brill (2006), Is China A Reliable Stakeholder in Central Asia?, Moscow, Carnegie Publications.

• Sogdeev, Ronald Z. and Eisenhower Susan (ed.), Central Asia: Conflict, Resolution and Change (Maryland: CPSS Press, 1995).

• Vohra, N.N. (ed.), Culture, Society and Politics in Central Asia and India, (Delhi: India International Centre, 1999).

ARTICLES

• Adelphi Paper. No. 281 (1993), The International Institute for Strategic Studies, Published by Brassey’s (UK) Ltd., London.
• Bilgin Mert (2003), “State and Transition in emerging petroleum economies of the Caspian”, Middle East Technical University.
• Blagov Sergei (2006), “Deal With Turkmenistan Enhances Russia,’s Energy Position in Central Asia”, Eurasia Insight.

- Boucek Christopher (2007), “Central Asia Turns Toward Iran At Russia&#146;'s Expense”, Central Asia Caucasus Institute.

• Hunter Shireen T., “Central Asia Since Independence”, published with The Strategic and International Studies, Washington DC.
• Mekhtiyev Aidyn (1994), “Chernomyrdin has no Complaints against

• Oliker Olga Thomas S. S Zayna (2003), “Sources of Conflict and Paths to US Involvement”, Faultlines of Conflict in Central Asia and The South Caucasus, Rand Publishers, Santa Monica.

• Sachdeva Gulshan (2006), India’s Attitude towards China’s Growing Influence in Central Asia, China and Eurasia Forum Quarterly, Volume 4, No. 3, Washington DC.

• Schleusner Tim and Chad Erb, “Caspian Oil-A Sleeping Giant: An Overview of the Oil Industry in the Caspian Basin”, (USA), 2002.

• Websites Accessed

• “Can Russia Sustains its Dominance in Central Asia”?, www.ingentaconnect.com/content/sage/sdi/2001/00000032/00000002/art00009.

• “History of Turkmenistan”, http://www.turkmenistanembassy.org/turkmen/history/history.html.
• “Index of Economic Freedom”,

• “India plays Central Asia Card, Forges strategic ties to counter Pakistan”,

• "Military Cooperation between Georgia, Ukraine, Uzbekistan, Azerbaijan, and Moldova in the GUUAM Framework.", Tomas Valasek, http://ksgnotes1.harvard.edu/BCSIA/Library.nsf/pubs/ValasekGUUAM.

• “Overview of the Migration systems in the CIS countries”,

• “Russia’s Capture on Central Asian Energy”,

• "Russian Firms to Deepen Involvement in Turkmen Fuel Sector",

• “Six CIS States to Extend Collective Security Pact”,

• “Turkmenistan Strategic Considerations”,

• “Turkmenistan - The Economic Base”,

• “Weekly News Brief on Turkmenistan”,

• "World Bank discusses Country Assistance Strategy for Turkmenistan",

Journals and Newspaper

• Accord, (London).
• Adelphi Paper, (JK)
• Central Asia Monitor, (Benson, USA).
• Central Asian Survey, (London).
• Civil Wars, (London)
• The Hindu, (Madras)
• The World Today, (Washington).
• Times of Central Asia
• World Focus, (New Delhi)
• Comparative Strategy, (London).
• Conflict Studies, (UK).
• Contemporary Central Asia, (New Delhi).
• Current History, (Philadelphia)
• Eurasian Studies, (Ankara).
• Europe-Asia Studies, (London).
• Foreign Affairs, (New York).
• International Herald Tribune, (Paris).
• National Herald, (New Delhi).
• Post-Soviet Affairs, (Columbia)