CONTENT

CHAPTER ONE  1

INTRODUCTION  1

1.1. A brief history  1

1.2. The constitution of Malaysia and its political system  4

1.3. Understanding the concept of civil society  7
1.3.a. Democracy and civil society  12
1.3.b. Civil society and development  14
1.3.c. Civil society and the state  14
1.3.d. Components of civil society  15
1.3.e. Religion and civil society  17
1.3.f. Civil society and citizenship  19
1.4. Multiculturalism and the role of civil society in Malaysia  21
1.4.a. Primacy of individual rights in the liberal tradition  23
1.4.b. Cultural discrimination and community identity  27
1.4.c. Multiculturalism and the group rights  29
1.4.d. Special rights, not group rights  33
1.4.e. Citizenship and group differentiated rights  33
1.5. Observation  34

CHAPTER TWO  39

MINORITY COMMUNITIES IN MALAYSIA  40

2.1. Indian community in Malaysia  40
2.1.a. Statistics of Indian Population  44
2.1.b. Indian community, Hinduism and culture
2.1.c. Major festivals
2.1.d. Caste in Malay Hindu society
2.1.e. Other religions followed by Indian community in Malaysia
2.2. Indigenous people in Malaysia
2.2.a. Orang Asli
2.2.a.i. Political participation and the leadership of Orang Asli
2.2.b. Indigenous people of Sabah and Sarawak
2.2.b.i. Culture in Sabah and Sarawak
2.2.b.ii. Land, legal status, identity and marginalization
2.3 Chinese community in Malaysia
2.3.a. Diversity among ethnic Chinese in Malaysia
2.3.b. Major Chinese festivals
2.3.c. Religion and belief system

CHAPTER THREE
CULTURAL DIVERSITY AND MINORITY RIGHTS IN MALAYSIA
3.1. Language policy and planning
3.1.a. Naming a national language
3.1.b. The education rights of ethnic minorities
3.2. Religious freedom in Malaysia
3.2. a. Constitutional guarantee
3.2.b. Restriction on religious freedom
3.3. Summary of religious freedom
3.4. Clamping down on opposition
3.4. a. Malaysia’s emergency powers
3.4.b. Emergency powers and minority rights
3.4.c. Examining the 1969 proclamation
3.5. Implications of Malaysia's restrictive laws
3.6. Evaluating Malaysia's preferential policies
3.7. Education system and ethnic minorities in Malaysia

CHAPTER FOUR

ISLAMIC ASSERTION AND MULTICULTURAL SOCIETY

4.1. Major Islamic organizations
4.2. UMNO and the islamization race
4.3. The 1969 riots and aftereffects for minorities
4.4. Ideology of Islam and development
4.5. Malaysian way of development

CHAPTER FIVE

ETHNIC DIVERSITY AND THE QUESTION OF NATIONAL IDENTITY

5.1. Democracy, authoritarianism and nationalist ideologies in Malaysia
5.2. Competing nationalism: models for analyses
5.2.a. Models of ethnic cultural, civic and multicultural nationalism
5.2.b. Models of collectivist authoritarian and individualistic nationalism
5.3. Wawasan 2020: optimism in a new nation through development
5.4. Moving away from ethno cultural policies
5.5. The growth of a confident Malay middle class
5.6. Melayu Baru as a model for the Malay community in a civic nation
5.7. Recession of ethnic identity and emerging Malaysian identity
5.8. Civic nationalism overwhelmed ethno cultural nationalism

5.9. Mahathir’s leadership was endorsed in the 1995 elections

5.10. Mahathir’s collectivist-authoritarian nationalist view

5.10.a. Mahathir’s collectivist nationalism

5.11. Political elites as the interpreter of the common will of the community

5.11.a. Authoritarian suppression of potential challenges to Mahathir’s vision

5.12. Indoctrinating the community with Mahathir’s vision

5.13. Mahathir’s rhetoric of threats to civic Malaysian nation

5.13. a. Case of external threats: demonizing the west

5.13.b. Ethno cultural threat from Chinese chauvinism

5.13.c. Ethno cultural threat from Islamic extremism

5.14. Mahathir’s progressive and tolerant Islam as an alternative to extremism

CONCLUSION

BIBLIOGRAPHY