ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This thesis would not have been possible without the encouragement, support, inputs and feedbacks from many individuals. First and foremost, my supervisor, Dr. S. Srinivasa Rao has supported me in every stage and provided valuable inputs to the thesis. I am extremely grateful to him for his wholehearted support and constant encouragement in my endeavour despite his busy schedule. I am really fortunate and feel proud of having worked under his supervision, both for my M.Phil. and Ph.D.

I take this opportunity to thank Mrs Vasudha Rao of Hindustan Latex Family Planning Promotion Trust and wife of Dr. Rao for sharing her experience and generous help in finalising my interview schedule for the study and also for providing useful materials on the subject. The encouragement and suggestions from her has been of paramount importance.

I am truly grateful to Professor Geetha Nambissan for her suggestions and support throughout the period of the study and Professor Karuna Chanana for her enlightening guidance during my MPhil days.

I would like to acknowledge the views and inputs of Professor Binod Khadria, Professor Deepak Kumar, Professor Ajit Kumar Mohanty, Dr. Dhruv Raina, Dr. Minati Panda and other faculty members of our centre – Zakir Husain Centre for Educational Studies, in the preparation of the study. My special thanks to Dr. Shangamittra Acharya, Centre for Social Medicine and Community Health, JNU, for her suggestions at the initial stage of the present work.

I am thankful to the students, teachers, parents and traditional physicians in Manipur from whom data were collected and without their unconditional support my field work would not have been completed in time. I am also thankful to the Principals of the three colleges
(D.M. College of Arts, Imphal; Thoubal College, Thoubal and South East Manipur College, Komlathabi) for allowing me to conduct the study in their colleges. I would also like to thank all the HIV/AIDS patients/respondents in Manipur who shared their personal experiences without any hesitation and their contributions made this study unique and significant. I am also grateful to the staff of the Community Care Centres, and NGOs in Manipur for their help in collecting the information for this study.

I wish to gratefully acknowledge Indian Council of Social Science Research (ICSSR), New Delhi, for giving me a short term Doctoral Fellowship and University Grants Commission (UGC), New Delhi, for providing PhD fellowship in the latter stage of the thesis. I am particularly thankful to Dr. Harish Sharma and Vijay of ICSSR.

I thank staff members of libraries of Nehru Memorial Museum and Library, Teen Murti, New Delhi; Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi; National Medical Library, New Delhi; National Institute of Health and Family Welfare, New Delhi and Manipur University, Imphal for their cooperation. I would also like to acknowledge the help and cooperation extended by the office staff of our centre whenever I needed and my special thanks to Seema of our Centre's Library.

My family has been the source of my strength and I am thankful to my parents, sister, brothers and brother-in-law for their constant support and encouragement. My beloved father and mother have always been there when I need them the most. I am grateful to my father who collected documents/publications of the government of Manipur and sent them, which I could not collect during my fieldworks in Manipur. My eldest brother Dr. Somorendro has been my source of inspiration. With his research experience in JNU, he helped me and pressurised to complete the thesis despite his hectic schedule at office and home.

Many thanks to my elder brother Yaima for his encouragement and taking responsibilities at home without making any sort of insecurity to our parents in the absence of we three brothers who have been staying in Delhi. I have also special words for my Bhabhis (Iteima Sovabati and Iteima Beda) for their love and affection. My love and care to my nieces Sonia and Dayapati who came into this world during the present work and cherished my life. My younger brother Surjitkumar helped me in all possible ways despite his own busy schedule of Ph.D. research in JNU and teaching assignments.

I would also like to extend my gratitude to Manipur Research Forum, Delhi (MRFD), for giving me an opportunity to present a paper on the present study in their monthly seminar series. Thanks to all the participants of the seminar specially to Tamo Bimol, Tamo Bhagat, Tamo Bidhan, Tamo Manichandra, Da Homen and Jila for their suggestions during the discussion. My sincere thanks to my close friends- Ching, Soumik and brother like friends Otojit, Noni and Shantikumar for their encouragement and help in editing the present thesis.

It is hard to forget the enormous help received from my MPhil batch – Kripa, Radhika, Dheeraj, Tripti, Ketaki, Smita, Basant, Mritunjay and Rajeev. But none of them are here in the campus to see my work. Thanks to Rajeev for coming and sharing day-to-day life experiences in the weekends.

I wish to extend my deep appreciation to Dr. Imokanta, who is a friend indeed. He understands me and stands by me whenever I need him. My sincere gratitude to my close friends Dr. Amarjit, Basanti and Deepa.

I would like to acknowledge my friend Puinyabati Chanu for her moral support and encouragement. My sincere gratitude to Santinanath, Joy, Megha and Subhu (Tapti) for their encouragement to complete the thesis. There is also a special word of appreciation for my sister like friends Aru, Leima and Gita for their encouragement.
I have profound appreciation of my close friends in JNU – Bijen, Sunil, Umeshkanta, Newton, Rebika, Krishna, Mohandas and Ruhini. The arrival of new Manipuri friends like Haripriya, Joylata, Albite, Robin, Jayenti, Shrishi, Jugeshwor, Gaffar, Bimol, etc. refreshed my mind in the campus.

My sincere gratitude to senior/former hostellers of Tapti Hostel-Sanjoy, Aditya (Adi), Amit, Rajnish, Ajit, Appu Joseph, Mahesh, Ayaz, Siga, KD, Dubey, Yogesh, Atul, etc. Thanks to Sandipini, Brijesh, Bharat, Mustafa, Dr. Sanal, Amit Singh, Subasish, Priyanka, Gitarani, Gaytri, Rukman, Iqbal, Raghu, etc. for making Tapti Hostel a nice place to stay in JNU.

I also extend my sincere gratitude to Kaka Jogabanta, Tamo RK Tomba, Yambung Deepak, Iche Kavita, Ramesh and Roshni and also to Dr. Rojenkumar, Neeta, Pradyumna, Aphun, Polen, Tamo Subhakana, Yambung Brojen, Damudor, Sommy, Jitender and Cheche Sushma.

I also thank all my friends/associates whom I may have, by oversight, not acknowledged individually. This work, Needless to say, is the result of sheer labour and I am thankful to everyone who has contributed in the form of suggestions or providing information, or sharing their experiences or in other ways.
