ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I owe special gratitude to Professor K.L. Sharma who consented to supervise this interdisciplinary project. Prof. Sharma's guidance in formulating the questionnaires proved especially useful in arriving at important conclusions, breaking fresh ground in the field of women's studies.

I am grateful also to Dr. Kamlesh Vinayak, Librarian, Hans Raj College, who has borne the burden of this project by becoming an indispensable source of relevant material.

I owe a very special thanks to Mr. Gulshan Kumar Sachdeva for co-operating and taking pains in typesetting the material.

The thesis owes itself to all the respondents and organizations like Manushi and Centre for Development of Women's Studies for providing data and insights which have become the backbone of this work.

I also acknowledge support and encouragement from members of my family, especially my father, late Mr. K.D. Shourie.

Kumara