Acknowledgements

First and foremost I express my deepest gratitude to Prof. V.N. Misra, my guide for his help and guidance without which this thesis would not have seen the light of day.

I also take this opportunity to thank Dr. Vasant Shinde, who taught me what field archaeology is.

My gratitude is no less to my teachers from Deccan College, Profs. S.N. Rajaguru, K. Paddayya, Drs. M.D. Kajale, G.L. Badam, P.K. Thomas, S.R. Walimbe, Malti Nagar, R.K Mohanty, A.R. Marathe, G. Lad, V.D. Gogte, Sheila Mishra, P.P. Joglekar, S. Atre, V. Sathe, S. Deo, G.B. Deglurkar, R.S. Pappu, B.C. Deotare and A. Kshirsagar who taught me the finer nuances of archaeology and its various specialisations. My thanks also extend to Mr. Gurjar who taught me how to use a computer.

I thank the entire staff of the Deccan College library, past and present, without whom no work could ever be done.

I also take here the opportunity to thank all the other staff of the Deccan College, the people in the office, the peons, my friends in the draughtsman's department, Shrikant, Dighe, Karanjkar, Phule and Rokade, and Sunil from the photography department, thank you all.

My warm thanks to Mama and Namdeo at the canteen for all the chai and 'dish', that allowed me to keep body and soul together at Deccan College.
My thanks also go, albeit posthumously, to Dattoba for the unending cups of tea and the countless packets of biscuits at the Archaeology Department canteen.

My thanks are also due to the various members and departments of archaeology outside the Deccan College, Prof. N.C. Ghosh; Dr. V.H. Sonavane and the others at the Department of Archaeology, M.S. University Baroda; the Department of A.I.C. and Archaeology Bareilly; the Department of A.I.C. and Archaeology Gorakhpur; Dr. S.P. Gupta and his Institute in Delhi; Dr. Murarilal and his Department at Kotputli; and last but not least, Mr. R.S. Bisht, who offered invaluable advice, and all those at the Archaeological Survey of India.

My thanks also to all those labourers and locals at all the places where I conducted research and worked at excavations, especially at Padri and at Balathal.

How I can thank all my friends and colleagues at Deccan College I don't know but I thank them anyway. Jeevan, Aruni, Richa, Viraj, Sukanya, Lajo, Jubal, Purnima, Samantha, Priya, Tama, Sunil, Anup, Atusha, Ajit, and others far to many to account for here, I thank you all. To my friend Jhonny who is no longer, I'll never forget all the good times.

Rukshi and Sunil, thanks for everything.

My friends Abhijit and Deepra, thank you.
To Shanti and Abhijit my foster family in Pune no amount of thanks will ever be enough.

To my friend, philosopher and 'guide', Dr. Ashok Krishnan my undying thanks for imbuing in me this passionate, lifelong love for archaeology. To you, I owe too much to just thank.

My thanks to my aunt Jeroo and her family, the Coyaji's, for the endless amounts of 'Biff' and the unending stream of encouragement.

Thanks to my pals who impatiently waited for me to finish this Ph. D, Binit, Amos, Ruso, Komal, Partha, Firdaus, Irfan, Punya, Aditya, Madhu, Claudia, Sue, Ashish, Musti, Manish, and Bipu.

Thanks are also due to my mum-in law, thanks Ma!

Thanks and all my love to Mum and Dad, my bulwarks, who stood by me and cheered me all the way through this Ph. D., often during my worst hours, and my siblings, Freny and Darius, who always encouraged me come what may.

To my wife Rhea, thank you for everything, for believing in me and standing by me in some of my darkest hours.

I also acknowledge the University Grants Commission, for the JRF and SRF, thanks to which this thesis was possible.
