ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am very grateful to my supervisor, Dr. P. Sahadevan, for his meticulous and constructive supervision of my doctoral work. His constant persuasion and guidance encouraged me a lot to complete the present research. It was his encouragement that led me to do a new theme of research on Proportional Representation system in Sri Lanka, with multi-dimensional perspective. It was an extremely interesting exercise to understand the representative development in Sri Lanka. He read my draft many times and gave valuable suggestions in giving a proper shape to my thesis. Besides, he immensely encouraged me during the final stage of my thesis when I faced severe disruption of my work due to computer problems and ailment of my family members. I feel greatly pleased and proud of having been a scholar under his supervision in Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi.

Several leaders of political parties and bureaucrats have spent their valuable time to share with me their experience on the present electoral system of Sri Lanka. Mahinda Rajapaksa (Leader of the Opposition), Athauda Seneviratne (MP, PA, former Minister of Ethnic Affairs, National Integration and Minister of Resources Development), Dinesh Gunawardene (MP and leader of MEP), Raja Collure (MP, Leader of CSPS), A.H.M. Fouzie (MP, President of Muslim Federation (SLPF), Bimal Rathnayaka (MP, JVP), Sampanthan (General Secretary, TULF), A. Vinayagamoorthy (MP, TC), T. Sitharthan (MP, Leader DPLF), M.S. Sellasamy (Deputy President of CWC and former Minister of State for Transport), S.P.
Desanayake (Commissioner of Elections) and C. Arunthavachelvam (Deputy Commissioner of Elections) are some among the many. I must express my gratitude to all of them for their cordial cooperation and for having answered my interview questions with frankness.

Among the academic community in Sri Lanka, Prof. Ranjith Amerasinghe (Professor of Political Science), Dr. Gamini Samaranayake (Dept. of Political Science), Professor G.H. Peris (Dept. of Geography) from the University of Peradeniya, Prof. Jeyadeva Uyangoda (Dept. of Political Science), Prof. Lakṣiri Fernando (Dept. Of Political Science), Dr. Rohan Edrisinha (Faculty of Law) from the University of Colombo, Sunil Bastian (Consultant, International Center for Ethnic Studies) and Dr. P. Saravanamuttu (Executive Director, Center for Policy Alternatives) earnestly helped me and spent their valuable time and discussing with me the electoral system in Sri Lanka. For me, these discussions were enlightening. I am ever thankful to all of them.

I am thankful to my friends in the Jawaharlal Nehru University who helped me in many ways to pursue my research. I sincerely express my thanks to Mr. N. Manoharan, who encouraged me tremendously at almost every step of my academic life in JNU. He provided needful materials, read my chapters, corrected the language and gave me fruitful suggestions in developing my draft.

My thanks to Mr. Sundarababu, who read my draft from the very beginning. His help was significant not only for my research but also in sharing a good academic life in JNU. Dr. Balachandran (Research Associate, School of Environmental Sciences, JNU) is my affectionate friend who gave me the much-needed moral support in research life. My colleagues Mr. K. Kailash and Mr. K. Sarveswaran had discussions with me and in the end provided materials that were useful to fill up the few gaps in my thesis. Ameerdeen, Amirthelingam, Ganapathy, Karthy, Lorance, Leema Rose, Mayilvaganan, Ranjith, Robert, Sofia and Surendra constantly provided me support during my student life in JNU.

I owe thanks to Prof. N. Balakrishnan (Former Rector, Vavuniya Campus) and his wife, who always extended their moral support to me and my family and showed their confidence in me to continue my Ph.D in JNU. I thank Mr. S.R. Sivarajah (Uncle) and his family, who helped us enormously in many ways in the last four years.

I am grateful to my wife Baleswary, who has devoted considerable time in developing my academic career in the last four years in New Delhi. I owe a special gratitude for her endurance in looking after most of the family responsibility and leaving me to concentrate on my research, which enabled me to meet my target in time. I wish to record also my love and affection to my daughter Sankavi for adjusting with me in the inhospitable climate of New Delhi within the available facility of our hostel life.

I extend my heartfelt gratitude to my beloved mother, brothers, sisters and relatives who had to endure our long separation.
Finally, I am very much thankful to my brother, Yohendran and Srikanthan, who helped me in the critical period of my study when I struggled a lot due to inadequate means in continuing my study.
