ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It would not be ethical if I claim the present work as mine and mine alone. Nevertheless I am instrumental in undertaking and completing this work, when I think of its long period, spread over five years, I realize what a small contribution I can claim to it.

The major contribution of course goes to my both the guides. In the first four years of my study I worked under Late Dr. B.K. Sohoni. At this moment I remember a number of free and frank discussions which I had with him on various aspects of the study. He always encouraged and inspired me and showed me the right direction. No words are with me to express adequately my heartfelt gratitude towards him.

But due to sad and sudden demise of Dr. B.K. Sohoni, I was terribly disturbed and shock due to his death was beyond my tolerance. I approached Dr. N.K. Upasani and requested him to accept me as his student for this study. Inspite of his busy schedule and research guidance work, he not only accepted me as a student but gave me courage to withstand the shock that I had. He constantly motivated me and extended his expert guidance in completing this work. I record my deep gratitude to him not only for his expert guidance but also for his open-mindedness, keen interest in research work, and sympathies for me.
In the formative period of this work, I had privilege to discuss various research difficulties and doubts that crept in, with many experts from this field. My discussions with Dr. M.B. Buch, Dr. B.K. Passi, and Dr. N.K. Jangira were a great help to me. I also consulted Dr. Anil Kharshikar, Reader in Statistics, University of Poona, Pune with respect to various statistical problems during the analysis of the data. I express my indebtedness to all of them.

I am thankful to Dr. D.B. Desai, Head, Centre of Advance Study in Education, M.S. University, Baroda for not only for my selection as a teacher fellow but also for providing me necessary research facilities during my one year stay in Baroda. I am grateful to Dr. Jyotiben Trivedi, The Vice Chancellor, Smt. Bhansali, The Registrar of S.N.D.T. Women's University, and Dr. (Miss) V.B. Mehta, Principal, S.N.D.T. College of Education, Pune, for granting me one year study leave to accept the teacher fellowship at CASE. This accelerated my research work considerably.

In any educational experiment on teaching, the co-operation from the schools plays a crucial role in the success of the experiment. But for the excellent co-operation from the Head Mistresses, Supervisors, teachers, and students, this study would not have seen a light of the day. I am very much thankful to the Head Mistresses, Teachers, and students of His Highness Chintamanrao Patwardhan High School, Nenukaswaroop Memorial High School for their keen interest in the project and for providing necessary facilities for the success of this experimental work.
Teaching is the heartland of research on teaching. I know the capacity of Mrs. Hemlata Parasnis to translate plan of teaching into action, and her aptitude for classroom teaching, when she was my student. Therefore, when I requested her to work as a teacher in the experiment, she agreed not only without any hesitation but instantaneously without going into details of nature of work involved in the study. Her programmed teaching resulted into increase in the precision of the experiment. And therefore, she richly deserves my thanks even though she may not like them.

I had countless discussions in minutest details with my friend Shri A.N. Joshi, Lecturer, Department of Education, Shivaji University, Kolhapur. These discussions helped me a great deal in systematizing the various ideas from diversified fields such as interaction analysis, analysis of covariance, teaching, and teacher behaviour. My thanks are due to him also.

My colleagues Dr. Ketkar, and Miss Sohoni also helped me a lot whenever requested. I am very much thankful to them. Miss Puntambekar, and Miss Ambekar gave timely assistance in psychological testing and observation of teaching respectively. I extend thanks to them also.

Dr. Dhruvkumar Joshi, Lecturer in English, Department of English, M.S. University, Baroda, and my uncle Shri Nanasaheb helped me in correcting the manuscripts of the thesis from the point of view of language and style. I am thankful to them.
